NINE MORE AMERICANS MASSACRED IN MEXICO

One of the Victims is a Woman—English Women Also Murdered by One of Villa's Bands Acting Under Orders of Gen. Jose Rodriguez—Details of Monday's Horror.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 13.—Following closely upon Monday's massacre of seventeen United States citizens and one Canadian in Mexico, word was received here today from Chihuahua City that nine more Americans, including an American woman and one English woman, have been killed by members of Francisco Villa's band in Madera.

The latest massacre was reported to be the work of former Villa soldiers acting under orders of General Jose Rodriguez, who recently issued a proclamation saying he would kill every American who fell into his hands.

The death train bearing the bullet-riddled corpses of the Americans slain on Monday in Santa Ysabel, arrived in Juarez at 1:55 o'clock this morning and after a short stay crossed the Rio Grande River to the Santa Fe Railroad freight railroad yards, where the bodies were removed.

Accompanying the bodies was an armed escort of four Americans that had gone out from Chihuahua City to recover them. The "death special" was followed by a troop train filled with Carranzista soldiers.

The arrival here of the victims of the massacre inflamed still higher the intense feeling which has been growing ever since news of the massacre was first received.

Military guards on the bridge across which the bodies were borne were doubled upon orders from General John Pershing, U. S. A., and extra squads of policemen were on duty throughout the city all night to put down any outbreaks of anti-Mexican demonstrations.

Groups of weeping relatives awaited anxiously the arrival of the death train. As rapidly as the bodies were taken from the train they were turned over to undertakers without any red tape or formality.

The corpses were terribly mutilated, showing that the victims had not only been shot but had been cut and stabbed. The body of C. R. Watson had been decapitated with a bayonet and a long search was necessary before the head was found.

Fresh details of the massacre were received here with the death train. These showed that the Mexican bandits had exercised the most ferocious brutality in putting their helpless victims to death.

Here is the story of the massacre gathered from persons who witnessed it:

About 1:55 Monday afternoon the "massacre train" stopped at Kilometer No. 68, a short distance from Santa Ysabel, the trainmen explaining that a supply train had been recalled a short distance ahead.

Some of the passengers began leaving the coaches to walk up and down beside the tracks. As they did so, between 30 and 40 armed Mexicans were seen running toward the railroad tracks and along the crest of a range of low hills in the distance several hundred mounted men suddenly sprang into view. All were Villistas.

The Mexicans on foot upon reaching the train clambered up the steps and entered the coaches, in the meantime ordering all who had left the cars to return to their seats. They were armed with army rifles and regular service pistols, which they used in the most threatening manner.

"Stand up, all you gringos!" shouted a Mexican who seemed to be the leader of the band. He was dressed in a uniform and wore a heavy sombrero covered with silver mountings.

The passengers, thinking that they had been held up and that the Mexicans would be satisfied with taking their money and jewelry, were not very much alarmed.

However, this feeling of comparative safety began giving way to intense anxiety when the leader began walking down the aisle of the car, poking various passengers in the ribs with the muzzle of his pistol and demanding:

"You American?"

At the end of each car stood several of the bandits, their rifles carrying army bayonets.

Most of the Mexicans knew a little English, their vocabulary consisting chiefly of oaths.

Most of the Americans had risen to their feet, holding their hands above their heads. One of them called out: "Well, boys, we are robbed again."

No sooner had the words left his mouth than a shot rang out and W. D. Pearce fell back in his seat with a stream of pain. He had been shot through the body.

The real nature of the foray now became apparent, but most of the Americans remained cool, hoping to escape in some way or another.

After the shooting of Pearce several of the Americans were roughly seized by Mexicans who began to drag them toward the doors of the coach. However, no resistance was offered.

"Come on, you gringos; get off!" was the next command of the leader. As the Americans left the train they were surrounded by the armed band and held prisoners.

Apparently the Americans did not move fast enough to satisfy the Mexican bandit chief for there was a volley of shots in the car and the cries of pain which followed showed that some had been hit.

W. J. Wallace was just descending the steps of the car when a bullet struck him in the back of his head and he fell sprawling in a pool of blood. A Mexican dropped his rifle, kicked the body out of the way, and then started to rummage in the pockets of the clothing.

Mexicans fell upon the other bodies like wild animals, clawing at the faces with their hands and tearing off the clothing.

Four or five of the Americans were killed in the coach as they were leaving it.

The Americans died bravely. Not one of them begged for mercy. Those who had left the coaches stood white-faced but erect as they awaited their turn. It had been seen that escape was impossible as C. W. Watson, leader of the party, had been killed while trying to make his way to safety in a small ravine.

Watson, against whom the bitterest hatred of the Mexicans was directed, was among the first to leave the car. As he dropped to the ground on the east side of the train, he started to run. The Mexicans raised their rifles and fired a volley, but Watson did not fall. Another salvo of shots rang out and Watson fell to his face, his body sliding along the ground for ten or twelve feet. He had been wounded three times. Several Mexicans ran up to the body and one, believing the American still alive, slashed at the neck with the bayonet of his rifle until the head was severed.

J. W. Woon tried to take advantage of the opportunity while the Mexicans were firing at Watson and he started to run. He hadn't gone one hundred yards before he fell with four bullets in his body. The Mexicans promptly congratulated each other on their marksmanship.

The next to be killed was M. B. Romero. With ghastly humor the Mexicans pretended to give him a chance to escape. He fell with his body riddled.

Four bullets were then fired into the body of R. P. McHaffon. The other Americans, dazed by the orgy of murder they were witnessing, were then lined up against the car and an execution squad was told off. Some of the victims were shot after they had fallen from the first volley of the firing squad.

In the train the other passengers covered on the floor for some of the Mexicans were shooting wildly by this time and bullets were flying in every direction, splintering the woodwork of the coaches and smashing through the windows.

The bodies of the Americans were stripped of their clothing, for the most part. Every garment was ransacked. If a Mexican secured less loot from a corpse than satisfied his greed he jabbed his bayonet into the unoffending corpse.

When word was taken to Chihuahua City of the massacre the Americans at once formed a rescue squad of heavily armed men which set out post-haste for the scene.

The corpses of Watson, Romero, McHaffon and Woon lay where they had fallen apparently. Fourteen other bodies were found in a little gully about four feet from the railway tracks, where they had been dumped by the bandits. It is believed from stories told by passengers on the "massacre train" that none of the 18 Americans were any weapons on their person.

If the victims had revolvers in their suitcases they had no time to get them out for self-defense. In addition to the personal belongings of the victims, the bandits secured $10,000 which was being taken to the plant of the Cusi Mining Co. to pay off the bonds.

Thomas B. Holmes, the only one of the intended victims to make his escape, owes his life to the efforts of Watson and Woon to save themselves. In the confusion attending the shooting of Watson and Woon, Holmes made his way toward the rear of the train, and although fired upon, gained the shelter of a small ravine. Mexicans pursued him but he managed to hide beneath some brush and ultimately made his way to Chihuahua City.

After the massacre and after the bandits had secured all the loot they could find, they mounted horses and rode away toward the Sierra Madre Mountains in the west.

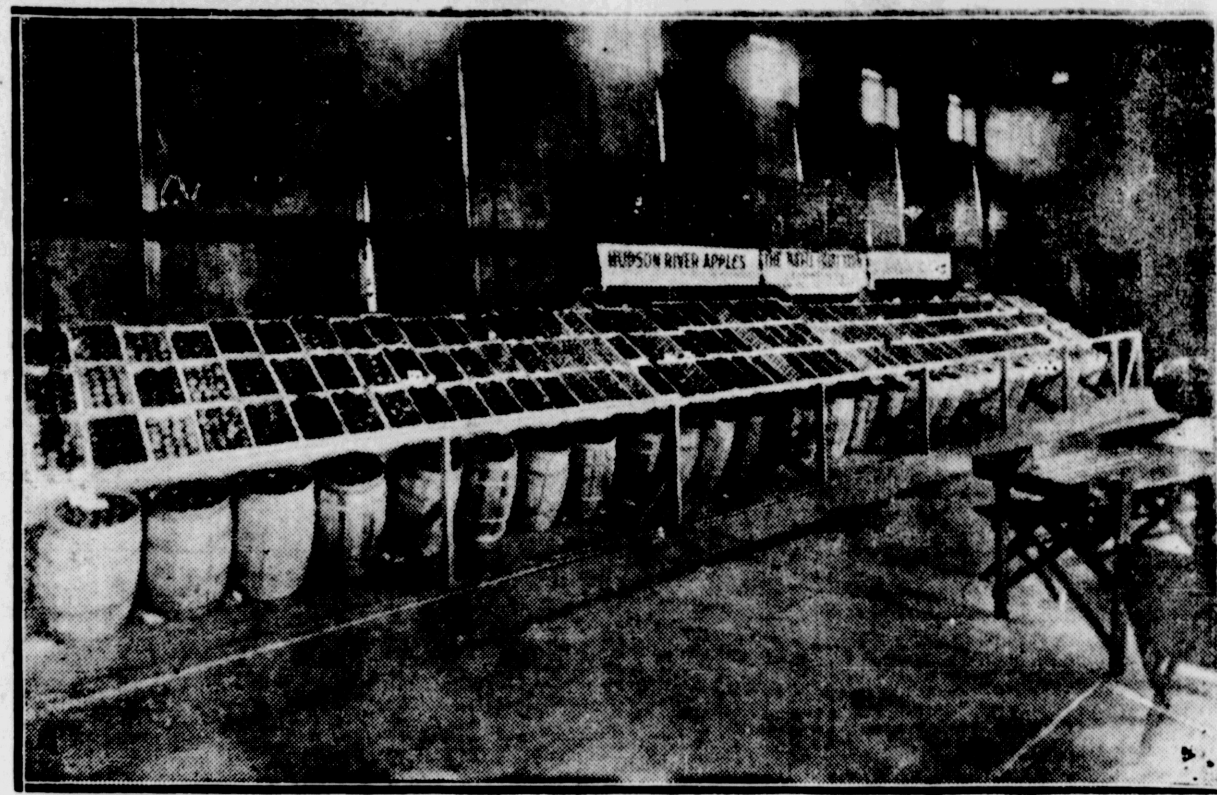

The train was then backed toward Chihuahua City, arriving there about 9 o'clock Monday night.

So great was the fear of the trainmen and passengers that they did not even wait to pick up the corpses of the slain.

A special train was made up by the Northwestern Railroad Monday night, consisting of three box cars. Early Tuesday morning it set out for the scene of the massacre carrying fourteen Americans headed by Dr. J. O. Newby, and 200 soldiers from the Carranzista garrison in Chihuahua City, that had been put at the disposal of the Americans by General Jacinto Trevino.

Two of the members of the American squad were Roland and Joseph Anderson, father and brother of Maurice Anderson, one of the American victims of the bandits. The others were Fred Stevens, W. N. Fink, E. H. McKay, D. E. Bell, Dr. J. M. Smith, J. B. Barker, A. R. Carson, Ray Harrell, J. M. Murray, W. L. Winchell and M. J. Luna.

On Tuesday afternoon about 2 o'clock the box car special arrived outside of Santa Ysabel where, just twenty-four hours before, the lives of the little American party had been snuffed out.

The Mexican soldiers, taking machine guns with them, detoured to reconnoiter for it was feared that the bandits might still be lurking in the neighborhood.

After a two hours search no bandits were seen and Dr. McKay insisted that the work of collecting the bodies be commenced. The commander of the Mexican soldiers lent him and his men to the American squad and supplied them with two machine guns while the remainder of Mexican troops continued to scour the surrounding hills.

The special train began to move, but had not gone far before two Mexicans flagged and told the engineer that a band of Villa soldiers were lying in the brush not far away.

Several mounted men could be seen in the distance watching the movements of the train. Dr. Newby and Dr. McKay decided to get some more men before they returned to their work; the train put back into Santa Ysabel where sixty more Carranzista soldiers were requisitioned from Col. Garcia. It was dusk before the train again reached the scene of the massacre and in the fading twilight the Americans could still see the sentinel horsemen silhouetted against the sky on a distant butte. Others appeared until it was estimated that there were about 400 men in the group.

Disregarding the cavalrymen the Americans alighted and began collecting the corpses. While the Americans searched on both sides of the railroad tracks the Carranzista soldiers were ranged about and their machine guns were planted on eminences to sweep the surrounding country.

There were from two to five bullet holes in each corpse. Everyone of the victims had been shot in the head as though the bandits, to make sure of death, had put a bullet in the brain of each man before they rode away. In Mexican revolutionary warfare this is known as a "tiro de gracia" (the shot of grace).

The naked, bleeding corpses were tenderly placed in one of the cars and the box car special, which had now become a funeral special, began steaming back toward Chihuahua City.

The Carranzista troops reported that while the Americans were engaged in their gruesome work, the mounted men on the distant hill tops had ridden away.

The bodies arrived in Chihuahua City on Wednesday morning at 2 o'clock. Wednesday afternoon the journey to the border began, the bodies being guarded by 36 armed Americans and a number of Mexican soldiers.

In Chihuahua City the corpses had been washed and clothed although no time was given for embalming. Eight members of the squad which had rescued the remains accompanied them to El Paso; the other members of the band were too exhausted and overcome to make the trip. All the way to Juarez the door of the Pullman car containing the eighteen coffins were guarded by a man with an automatic pistol in his hands.

The trip from Chihuahua City to El Paso was made without incident. When the train arrived in Juarez a detail of troops from the Carranzista garrison stood at "Attention" in the railroad station and dipped the Mexican flag as the cars rolled by.

No confirmation has been received of the report that another American named Thomas Johnson, has been killed by Villistas near Santa Ysabel. The report was received by United States Consul Fletcher in Chihuahua City, who is now in El Paso.

FOG ACCIDENTS IN NEW YORK HARBOR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 13.—A heavy fog which paralyzed traffic caused numerous accidents in the waters around New York today. A Hamilton avenue ferryboat carrying 300 passengers was driven ashore on Governor's Island, but no one was hurt and the boat was pulled off shortly afterward by tugs.

A Staten Island ferryboat crashed into a coal lighter, causing a panic on board. The Boston freighter Pequotie rammed a cattle boat loaded with 600 cattle and sheep, killing some of the steers but the damage to the boats was small. Four big ocean-going steamships were held up in Quarantine and sailing were delayed.

Third in Star Course

The third number in the Star Course series of entertainments at the Y. M. C. A. will be given Wednesday evening, January 19, by the Old Home Singers, a company of five artists. The program given by the singers is a journey into the Days of Yesterday, an evening of reminiscence with the happy association of the past. At the opening of the program the five young people have just returned from a musical where a song composed by one of the young men has proven the hit of the season. A discussion starts regarding the music of today and by way of illustration they sing selections from grand opera, oratorio music, sentimental ballads, ragtime, topical and novelty songs. The artists agree that the most beautiful and best loved of all are the old songs and they plan an evening of the old songs. The costumes and staging carry the audience in fancy back to the days of long ago. This number is considered one of the strongest ever given at the association.

Grip and Diphtheria Prevail.

This winter so far has been marked by the large number of those who have been or still are ill from various diseases and it is thought to be due largely to the changeable weather experienced this season with one or two days cold followed by a thaw and warmer weather which has led many people to catch cold. The number of cases of grip in Kingston is estimated by a local physician to be well over a thousand and while some of the cases are serious many of them are not unpropitious to a physician's care. Diphtheria also seems to be on the increase and four new cases have developed this week making a total of eight cases that have been reported to Health Officer Johnston at the city hall so far this month. There are also a few scarlet fever cases about. The larger part of the diphtheria cases are in the lower section of the city.

Fire in School Sink.

People living near No. 5 school were given a big scare Wednesday night at six o'clock when flames were seen in one of the front rooms of the school by some children sleighing on the Wyndkoop hill in front of the school. At the time, Deputy Fire Chief Murphy was passing by on his way to his home on Stanley street and he forced a window open. There is a case of diphtheria in the school and the room was being fumigated, the flame of the fumigator in some way developing into a big blaze. Murphy did not attempt to put out the fire because it was in the sink and was of no danger to the surrounding school furniture. A still alarm was sent to the fire station and it was answered by the fire truck.

Oldest Tailor Had Anniversary.

In their home at Gidney Mills on Tuesday, John R. Post, Newburgh's oldest merchant tailor, and his wife, observed the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage. Mrs. Post was formerly Miss Jane Barnes of Newburgh and her husband was born in Plattekill. He is 73 years old and was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob A. Post. He was one of eight children, of whom three are living.

Head Hit a Rock.

While coasting down the Pine Bush hill on Saturday morning, Herbert Watkins, twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Watkins, was seriously injured by falling into the mill race at the foot of the hill. He was hauled out by companions and it was found his right side was paralyzed from having struck his head on a rock.

KINGSTON'S MAYOR WILL FIGHT FARES

A mayors' commission to conduct the opposition to any increase in New York Central Railroad passenger fares before the upstate public service commission has been named by Mayor James T. Lennon of Yonkers. The first meeting will be held in Poughkeepsie this month. The commission is composed as follows: Mayor Edwin W. Fliske of Mount Vernon; Mayor George R. Lunn of Schenectady; John B. Corwin, corporation counsel of Newburgh; F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown; Mayor D. W. Wilbur of Poughkeepsie; Mayor Cornelius Burns of Troy; Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., of Kingston; Mayor Lennon of Yonkers; Mayor James W. Stevens of Albany; Mayor James D. Smith of Utica; and W. C. Lawrence of Ardsley.

Traffic Protection Needed.

It was almost a miracle that no serious accident occurred at the close of the Dodge concert last evening. While the roadway leading to and from the high school has been as well cleaned of snow and ice as it possibly could be, the sidewalk has not been shoveled, nor is it needed for school purposes, the roadway being safer because of a slight roughness. Owing to the fact that there was no one in authority to insist upon autos entering and leaving the drive way single file, they ran up to the entrance of the building from the street and left two abreast. This left scarcely a foot on the lower side of the driveway for pedestrians who wished to reach the trolley cars, to use as a walk. Even so, when two of the largest cars stood or ran side by side, the people on foot were obliged to climb upon the snowy and slippery curbing to get out of their way. The slightest skidding on the part of the cars or a slip on the part of a pedestrian would have resulted in a serious accident. Now that attention has been called to the matter, undoubtedly it will be remedied for all future events that take place at the high school during the winter.

Failed to Appear.

The failure of Francis A. Waters, Jr., of Highland avenue, to keep a promise to appear in recorder's court this morning led Recorder Lang to issue a warrant for his arrest, after waiting until 9:20 o'clock for Mr. Waters to appear. Mr. Waters was arrested on Wednesday afternoon by Policeman Kuehn on a charge of running his automobile on the wrong side of the street. When taken to the city hall he was paroled in his own custody by Chief Wood on his promise to appear in court this morning at 9 o'clock. When arrested this morning on the warrant issued Mr. Waters was forced to furnish a bond of $100 for his appearance in court at 9 o'clock Friday morning. George Hutton of West Chestnut street signed the bond.

Miller is Not Missing.

The body of the unknown man killed by a West Shore train near Catskill on Wednesday morning was thought at first to be that of Joseph Miller of East Kingston and Coroner Rapp of Greene county called upon the local police about it this morning. Sergeant Hanley got in touch with Judge Mooney this morning at East Kingston to ascertain if Miller was missing from home. The sergeant was informed by Judge Mooney that Miller was not missing and was still in East Kingston alive and well. Sergeant Hanley notified Coroner Rapp to that effect.

SHULTIS FIRED AT GAME PROTECTOR

Cross Saved His Life by Dropping as the Trigger Was Pulled—Wittenberg Man Arrested on Charge of Assault.

Mendelssohn B. Shultis of Wittenberg, town of Woodstock, is in jail on a charge of assault in the second degree and will have a hearing before Justice of the Peace Evelyn at Woodstock today.

The complainants against Mr. Shultis are Game Protectors Eugene Cross and Fred T. DeWitt, who had quite an exciting experience at Mr. Shultis's farm on Tuesday, when they were conducting an investigation in that section regarding hunters who have been hunting without licenses.

According to the story told by the two game protectors, they visited Mendelssohn Shultis's farm Tuesday morning, and talked with him for some time. After they had left his farm, they were informed that he wanted to see them again, and they returned.

On their second visit, Mr. Shultis invited them to come inside the house and offered them each a glass of cider, which he was fearful would freeze if kept out of doors. They declined the invitation, and the three remained outside talking for some time.

During the conversation, Mr. Shultis told them, they say, that his son and a young friend were out in the woods hunting, and he thought they were hunting without a license, which he understood from reading the newspapers was not necessary this year. The protectors corrected him on that point.

While they were talking, the protectors say, Mr. Shultis's son and his companion appeared down the road, and Mr. Shultis left the protectors and started in their direction. Protector Cross also started in their direction and reached them first. He searched them and found a silver fox skin. Protector DeWitt also reached them about the same time and aided in the search.

Mendelssohn Shultis took his son's gun away from him and as he walked to the house he broke it, as though to unload it. He entered the house, and a few minutes later came out carrying the gun. The protectors say he pointed it at Protector Cross, who had come toward the house with Protector DeWitt and the two young men, and at a distance of eight or ten feet discharged one barrel point blank at Cross. The latter dropped in the snow just as Shultis pulled the trigger. He says he was so surprised when he saw the gun aimed at him that he could not move, and that his act of dropping to the ground was caused by nervous reaction.

Protector DeWitt, seeing his companion drop at the instant the gun was discharged, thought he had been shot, and ran toward the corner of the barn, meanwhile unbuttoning his overcoat and under coat in order to get at his own revolver, which he carried in his hip pocket. He says Shultis ran after him and pulled the trigger of the second barrel as he reached the corner of the barn and looked back. The second barrel missed fire, and DeWitt leaped toward Shultis. Protector Cross had regained his feet until they disarmed him, when he fled down the road. They pursued him in order to prevent him from returning to his house, and finally overtook him and placed him under arrest.

Shultis is said to have told Justice of the Peace Evelyn, in his arraignment, that the discharge of the gun was an "accident."

Mendelssohn B. Shultis was once indicted by the grand jury for arson, on complaint of Madison Shultis, whose mill was set on fire and burned, but the jury disagreed.

Shultis is said to have told Justice of the Peace Evelyn, in his arraignment, that the discharge of the gun was an "accident."

ENGINEER FAVORS DEEPER HUDSON

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Jan. 13.—Representatives Sanford and Parker were notified yesterday the district army engineer who surveyed the Deeper Hudson project had reported favorably on continuing the twenty-five foot channel to the Troy dam. At present the deep channel extends to Hudson.

The recommendation has been referred to the board of army engineers and it is expected that a formal recommendation will be made within two weeks. There is little doubt that the board will adopt the recommendations made to it by the district army engineer.

Sermons by Laymen.

It is rather unique for laymen to preach but the men of Kingston have prepared a number of sermons for the Rev. Dr. Ellis, of the Round Presbyterian Church by kindly answering the series of questions which he sent out. Not the least interesting of the questions of today is that of the attitude of men generally toward religion. What is religion? Are men by nature religious? Do men need religion? Can any man or class of men afford to become emancipated from formal religion as expressed by churches and creeds? Are some men indifferent to religion? Why? These are some of the questions raised and answered by the men of Kingston that will be presented by the pastor of the Round Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening.

NINE MORE AMERICANS MASSACRED IN MEXICO

One of the Victims is a Woman—English Women Also Murdered by One of Villa's Bands Acting Under Orders of Gen. Jose Rodriguez—Details of Monday's Horror.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
El Paso, Tex., Jan. 13.—Following closely upon Monday's massacre of seventeen United States citizens and one Canadian in Mexico, word was received here today from Chihuahua City that nine more Americans, including an American woman and one English woman, have been killed by members of Francisco Villa's band in Maderia.

The latest massacre was reported to be the work of former Villa soldiers acting under orders of General Jose Rodriguez, who recently issued a proclamation saying he would kill every American who fell into his hands.

The death train bearing the bullet-riddled corpses of the Americans slain on Monday in Santa Ysabel, arrived in Juarez at 1:55 o'clock this morning and after a short stay crossed the Rio Grande River to the Santa Fe Railroad freight railroad yards, where the bodies were removed.

Accompanying the bodies was an armed escort of four Americans that had gone out from Chihuahua City to recover them. The "death special" was followed by a troop train filled with Carranzista soldiers.

The arrival here of the victims of the massacre inflamed still higher the intense feeling which has been growing ever since news of the massacre was first received.

Military guards on the bridge across which the bodies were borne were doubled upon orders from General John Pershing, U. S. A., and extra squads of policemen were on duty throughout the city all night to put down any outbreaks of anti-Mexican demonstrations.

Groups of weeping relatives awaited anxiously the arrival of the death train. As rapidly as the bodies were taken from the train they were turned over to undertakers without any red tape or formality.

The corpses were terribly mutilated, showing that the victims had not only been shot but had been cut and stabbed. The body of C. R. Watson had been decapitated with a bayonet and a long search was necessary before the head was found.

Fresh details of the massacre were received here with the death train. These showed that the Mexican bandits had exercised the most despicable brutality in putting their helpless victims to death.

Here is the story of the massacre gathered from persons who witnessed it:

About 1:35 Monday afternoon the "massacre train" stopped at Kilometer No. 68, a short distance from Santa Ysabel, the trainmen explaining that a supply train had been cleared a short distance ahead.

Some of the passengers began leaving the coaches to walk up and down beside the tracks. As they did so, between 30 and 40 armed Mexicans were seen running toward the railroad tracks and along the crest of a range of low hills in the distance several hundred mounted men suddenly sprang into view. All were Villistas.

The Mexicans on foot upon reaching the train clambered up the steps and entered the coaches. In the meantime ordering all who had left the cars to return to their seats. They were armed with army rifles and regular service pistols, which they used in the most threatening manner.

"Stand up, all you gringos!" shouted a Mexican who seemed to be the leader of the band. He was dressed in a uniform and wore a heavy sombrero covered with silver mountings.

The passengers, thinking that they had been held up and that the Mexicans would be satisfied with taking their money and jewelry, were not very much alarmed.

However, this feeling of comparative safety began giving way to intense anxiety when the leader began walking down the aisle of the car, looking various passengers in the ribs with the muzzle of his pistol and demanding:

"You American?"

the steps of the car when a bullet struck him in the back of his head and he fell sprawling in a pool of blood. A Mexican dropped his rifle, kicked the body out of the way, and then started to rummage in the pockets of the clothing.

Mexicans fell upon the other bodies like wild animals, clawing at the faces with their hands and tearing off the clothing.

Four or five of the Americans were killed in the coach as they were leaving it.

The Americans died bravely. Not one of them begged for mercy. Those who had left the coaches stood white-faced but erect as they awaited their turn. It had been seen that escape was impossible, as C. W. Watson, leader of the party, had been killed while trying to make his way to safety in a small ravine.

Watson, against whom the bitterest hatred of the Mexicans was directed, was among the first to leave the car. As he dropped to the ground on the east side of the train, he started to run. The Mexicans raised their rifles and fired a volley, but Watson did not fall. Another salvo of shots rang out and Watson fell to his face, his body sliding along the ground for ten or twelve feet. He had been wounded three times. Several Mexicans ran up to the body and one, believing the American still alive, slashed at the neck with the bayonet of his rifle until the head was severed.

J. W. Woon tried to take advantage of the opportunity while the Mexicans were firing at Watson and he started to run. He hadn't gone one hundred yards before he fell with four bullets in his body. The Mexicans profanely congratulated each other on their marksmanship.

The next to be killed was M. B. Romero. With ghastly humor the Mexicans pretended to give him a chance to escape. He fell with his body riddled.

Four bullets were then fired into the body of R. P. McHatton.

The other Americans, dazed by the orgy of murder they were witnessing, were then lined up against the car. Some of the victims were shot after they had fallen from the first volley of the firing squad.

In the train the other passengers crowded on the floor for some of the Mexicans were shooting wildly by this time and bullets were flying in every direction, splintering the woodwork of the coaches and smashing through the windows.

The bodies of the Americans were stripped of their clothing, for the most part. Every garment was ransacked. If a Mexican secured less loot from a corpse than satisfied his greed he jabbed his bayonet into the unoffending corpse.

When word was taken to Chihuahua City of the massacre the Americans at once formed a rescue squad of heavily armed men which set out post-haste for the scene.

The corpses of Watson, Romero, McHatton and Woon lay where they had fallen apparently. Fourteen other bodies were found in a little gully about four feet from the railway tracks, where they had been dumped by the bandits. It is believed from stories told by passengers on the "massacre train," that none of the 18 Americans wore any weapons on his person.

If the victims had revolvers in their suitcases they had no time to get them out for self-defense.

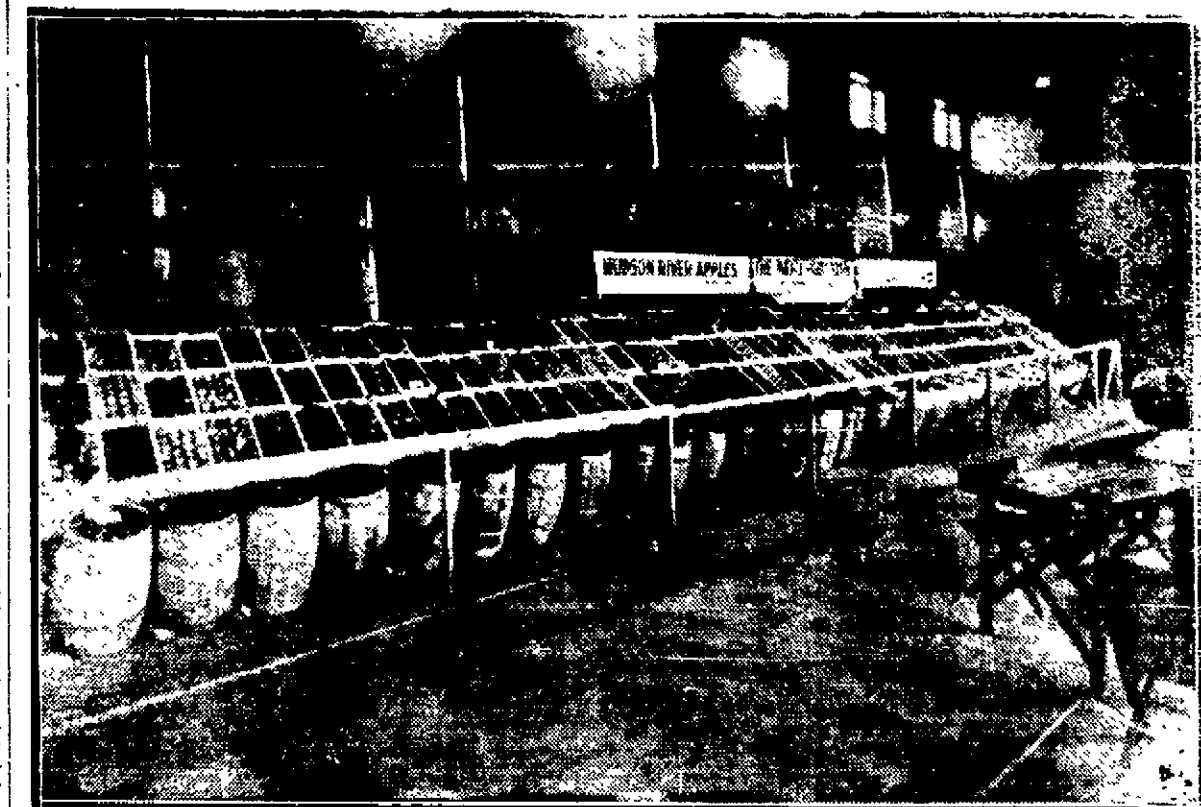

In addition to the personal belongings of the victims, the bandits secured $10,000 which was being taken to the plant of the Cusi Mining Co. to pay off the hands.

Thomas B. Holmes, the only one of the intended victims to make his escape, owes his life to the efforts of Watson and Woon to save themselves. In the confusion attending the shooting of Watson and Woon, Holmes made his way toward the rear of the train, and although fired upon, gained the shelter of a small ravine. Mexicans pursued him but he managed to hide beneath some brush and ultimately made his way to Chihuahua City.

After the massacre and after the bandits had secured all the loot they could find, they mounted horses and rode away toward the Sierra Madre Mountains in the west.

The train was then backed toward Chihuahua City, arriving there about 9 o'clock Monday night.

So great was the fear of the trainmen and passengers that they did not even wait to pick up the corpses of the slain.

PRIZE APPLES EXHIBITED AT HUDSON RIVER FRUIT EXCHANGE EXHIBIT IN POUGHKEEPSIE BY J. A. HEPWORTH & SON OF MILTON WHO WERE AWARDED GOLD AND SILVER MEDALS AT THE PANAMA-PACIFIC EXHIBITION, IN CALIFORNIA.

twenty-four hours before, the lives of the little American party had been snuffed out.

The Mexican soldiers, taking machine guns with them, detained to reconnoiter for it was feared that the bandits might still be lurking in the neighborhood.

After a two hours search no bandits were seen and Dr. McKay insisted that the work of collecting the bodies be commenced. The commander of the Mexican soldiers lent ten of his men to the American squad and supplied them with two machine guns while the remainder of Mexican troops continued to scour the surrounding hills.

The special train began to move, but had not gone far before two Mexicans flagged and told the engineer that a band of Villa soldiers were lying in the brush not far away.

Several mounted men could be seen in the distance watching the movements of the train. Dr. Newby and Dr. McKay decided to get some more men before they returned to their work; the train put back into Santa Ysabel where sixty more Carranzista soldiers were requisitioned from Col. Garcia. It was dusk before the train again reached the scene of the massacre and in the fading twilight the Americans could still see the sentinel horsemen silhouetted against the sky on a distant butte. Others appeared until it was estimated that there were about 400 men in the group.

Disregarding the cavalrymen the Americans alighted and began collecting the corpses. While the Americans searched on both sides of the railroad tracks the Carranzista soldiers were ranged about and their machine guns were planted on eminences to sweep the surrounding country.

There were from two to five bullet holes in each corpse. Everyone of the victims had been shot in the head as though the bandits, to make sure of death, had put a bullet in the brain of each man before they rode away. In Mexican revolutionary warfare this is known as a "tiro de gracia" (the shot of grace).

The naked, bleeding corpses were tenderly placed in one of the cars and the box car special, which had now become a funeral special, began steaming back toward Chihuahua City.

The Carranzista troops reported that, while the Americans were engaged in their gruesome work, the mounted men on the distant hill tops had ridden away.

The bodies arrived in Chihuahua City on Wednesday morning at 2 o'clock. Wednesday afternoon the journey to the border began, the bodies being guarded by 36 armed Americans and a number of Mexican soldiers.

In Chihuahua City the corpses had been washed and clothed although no time was given for embalming. Eight members of the squad which had rescued the remains accompanied them to El Paso; the other members of the band were too exhausted and overcome to make the trip. All the way to Juarez the door of the Pullman car containing the eighteen coffins were guarded by a man with an automatic pistol in his hands.

The trip from Chihuahua City to El Paso was made without incident. When the train arrived in Juarez a detail of troops from the Carranzista garrison stood at "attention" in the railroad station and dipped the Mexican flag as the cars rolled by.

No confirmation has been received of the report that another American named Thomas Johnson, who died last week at the Nelson House, Poughkeepsie, an estate of $125,000 is distributed. George H. Williams, a Poughkeepsie attorney, is named residuary legatee under the will which distributes $50,000 among relatives and various charitable institutions.

FOG ACCIDENTS IN NEW YORK HARBOR

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Jan. 13.—A heavy fog which paralyzed traffic caused numerous accidents in the waters around New York today. A Hamilton avenue ferryboat carrying 300 passengers was driven ashore on Governor's Island, but no one was hurt and the boat was pulled off shortly afterward by tugs. A Staten Island ferryboat crashed into a coal lighter, causing a panic on board. The Boston freighter Pequot, rammed a cattle boat loaded with 600 cattle and sheep, killing some of the steers but the damage to the boats was small. Four big ocean-going steamships were held up in Quarantine and sailing were delayed.

The third number in the Star Course series of entertainments at the Y. M. C. A. will be given Wednesday evening, January 13, by the Old Home Singers, a company of five artists. The program given by the singers is a journey into the Days of Yesterday, an evening of reminiscence with the happy association of the past. At the opening of the program the five young people have just returned from a musical where a song composed by one of the young men has proven the hit of the season. A discussion starts regarding the music of today and by way of illustration they sing selections from grand opera, oratorio, sentimental ballads, ragtime, topical and novelty songs. The artists agree that the most beautiful and best loved of all are the old songs and they plan an evening of the old songs. The costumes and staging carry the audience in fancy back to the days of long ago. This number is considered one of the strongest ever given at the association.

Grip and Diphtheria Preval.
This winter so far has been marked by the large number of those who have been or still are ill from various diseases and it is thought to be due largely to the changeable weather experienced this season with one or two days cold followed by a thaw and warmer weather which has had many people to catch cold. The number of cases of grip in Kingston is estimated by a local physician to be well over a thousand and while some of the cases are serious many of them are not under a physician's care. Diphtheria also seems to be on the increase and four new cases have developed this week making a total of eight cases that have been reported to Health Officer Johnston at the city hall so far this month. There are also a few scarlet fever cases about town. The larger part of the diphtheria cases are in the lower section of the city.

Fire in School Sink.
People living near No. 5 school were given a big scare Wednesday night at six o'clock when flames were seen in one of the front rooms of the school by some children sleighing on the Wynkoop hill in front of the school. At the time, Deputy Fire Chief Murphy was passing by on his way to his home on Stanley street and he forced a window open. There is a case of diphtheria in the school and the room was being fumigated, the flame of the fumigator in some way developing into a big blaze. Murphy did not attempt to put out the fire because it was in the sink and was of no danger to the surrounding school furniture. A still alarm was sent to the fire station and it was answered by the fire truck.

He was one of eight children, of whom three are living.

KINGSTON'S MAYOR WILL FIGHT FARES

A mayors' commission to conduct the opposition to any increase in New York Central Railroad passenger fares before the upstate public service commission has been named by Mayor James T. Lennon of Yonkers. The first meeting will be held in Poughkeepsie this month. The commission is composed as follows: Mayor Edwin W. Fiske of Mount Vernon; Mayor George H. Lunn of Schenectady; John B. Corwin, corporation counsel of Newburgh; F. R. Pierson of Tarrytown; Mayor D. W. Wilbur of Poughkeepsie; Mayor Cornelius Burns of Troy; Mayor Palmer Canfield, Jr., of Kingston; Mayor Lennon of Yonkers; Mayor James W. Stevens of Albany; Mayor James D. Smith of Dutchess; and W. C. Lawrence of Ardsley.

Traffic Protection Needed.
It was almost a miracle that no serious accident occurred at the close of the Dodge concert last evening. While the roadway leading to and from the high school has been as well cleaned of snow and ice as it possibly could be, the sidewalk has not been shoveled, nor is it needed for school purposes, the roadway being safer because of a slight roughness. Owing to the fact that there was no one in authority to insist upon autos entering and leaving the drive way single file, they ran up to the entrance of the building from the street and left two abreast. This left scarcely a foot on the lower side of the driveway for pedestrians who wished to reach the trolley cars, to use as a walk. Even so, when two of the largest cars stood on ran side by side, the people on foot were obliged to climb upon the snowy and slippery curbing to get out of their way. The slightest skidding on the part of the cars or a slip on the part of a pedestrian would have resulted in a serious accident. Now that attention has been called to the matter, undoubtedly it will be remedied for all future events that take place at the high school during the winter.

Failed to Appear.
The failure of Francis A. Waters, Jr., of Highland avenue, to keep his promise to appear in recorder's court this morning led Recorder Lang to issue a warrant for his arrest, after waiting until 9:20 o'clock for Mr. Waters to appear. Mr. Waters was arrested on Wednesday afternoon by Policeman Kuehn on a charge of running his automobile on the wrong side of the street. When taken to the city hall he was paroled on his own custody by Chief Wood on his promise to appear in court this morning at 9 o'clock. When arrested this morning on the warrant issued by Recorder Lang, Mr. Waters was forced to furnish a bond of $100 for his appearance in court at 9 o'clock Friday morning. George Hutton of West Chestnut street signed the bond.

Miller is Not Missing.
The body of the unknown man killed by a West Shore train near Catskill on Wednesday morning was thought at first to be that of Joseph Miller of East Kingston and Coroner Rapp of Greene county called up the local police about it this morning. Sergeant Haines got in touch with Judge Mooney this morning at East Kingston to ascertain if Miller was missing from home. The sergeant was informed by Judge Mooney that Miller was not missing and was still in East Kingston alive and well. Sergeant Haines notified Coroner Rapp to that effect.

Watkins, was seriously injured by falling into the mill race at the foot of the hill. SHULTIS FIRED AT GAME PROTECTOR

Cross Saved His Life by Dropping as the Trigger Was Pulled—Wittenberg Man Arrested on Charge of Assault.

Mendelssohn B. Shultis of Wittenberg, town of Woodstock, is in jail on a charge of assault in the second degree and will have a hearing before Justice of the Peace Ewlyn at Woodstock today.

The complainants against Mr. Shultis are Game Protectors Eugene Cross and Fred T. DeWitt, who had quite an exciting experience at Mr. Shultis's farm on Tuesday, when they were conducting an investigation in that section regarding hunters who have been hunting without licenses.

According to the story told by the two game protectors, they visited Mendelssohn Shultis's farm Tuesday morning, and talked with him for some time. After they had left his farm, they were informed that he wanted to see them again, and they returned.

On their second visit, Mr. Shultis invited them to come inside the house and offered them each a glass of cider, which he was fearful would freeze if kept out of doors. They declined the invitation, and the three remained outside talking for some time.

During the conversation, Mr. Shultis told them, they say, that his son and a young friend were out in the woods hunting, and he thought they were hunting without a license, which he understood from reading the newspapers was not necessary this year. The protectors corrected him on that point.

While they were talking, the protectors say, Mr. Shultis's son and his companion appeared down the road, and Mr. Shultis left the protectors and started in their direction. Protector Cross also started in their direction and reached them first. He searched them and found a silver fox skin. Protector DeWitt also reached them about the same time and aided in the search.

Mendelssohn Shultis took his son's gun away from him and as he walked to the house he broke it, as though to unload it. He entered the house and a few minutes later came out doors, carrying the gun. The protectors say he pointed it at Protector Cross, who had come toward the house with Protector DeWitt and the two young men, and at a distance of eight or ten feet discharged one barrel point blank at Cross. The latter dropped in the snow just as Shultis pulled the trigger. He says he was so surprised when he saw the gun aimed at him that he could not move, and that his act of dropping to the ground was caused by nervous reaction.

Protector DeWitt, seeing his companion drop at the instant the gun was discharged, thought he had been shot, and ran toward the corner of the barn, meanwhile unbuttoning his overcoat and under coat in order to get at his own revolver, which he carried in his hip pocket. He says Shultis ran after him and pulled the trigger of the second barrel as he reached the corner of the barn and looked back. The second barrel missed fire, and DeWitt leaped toward Shultis. Protector Cross had regained his feet and the two struggled with Shultis until they disarmed him, when he fled down the road. They pursued him in order to prevent him from returning to his house, and finally overtook him and placed him under arrest.

Shultis is said to have told Justice of the Peace Ewlyn, on his arraignment, that the discharge of the gun was an "accident."

Mendelssohn B. Shultis was once indicted by the grand jury for arson, on complaint of Madison Shultis, whose mill was set on fire and burned, but the jury disagreed.

Sommons by Laymen.
It is rather unique for laymen to preach but the men of Kingston have prepared a number of sermons for the Rev. Dr. Ellis of the Roundout Presbyterian Church by kindly answering the series of questions which he sent out. Not the least interesting of the questions of today is that of the attitude of men generally toward religion. What is religion? Are men by nature religious? Do men need religion? Can any man or class of men afford to become emancipated from formal religion as expressed by churches and creeds? Are some men indifferent to religion? Why? These are some of the questions raised and answered by the men of Kingston that will be presented by the pastor of the Roundout Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening.

BATTERED BENNETT DEMANDS DAMAGES

In county court this morning No. 10, John Bennett against Elmer and Alonzo Lockwood was taken up for trial. The suit is an action to recover $1,000 damages incurred in the indenture of the plaintiff's physionomy by the two brothers in whose hearts, it is argued by the plaintiff's attorney has been burning a fire of hate ever since Alonzo was determined to have alienated Bennett's wife affections in December, 1914. As a result of this verdict against Alonzo he was obliged to pay Bennett $1,200.

According to the stories told by the witnesses the alleged assault occurred at Cohen's Hotel at Libertyville on the night of Saturday August 14, 1915 and there was no doubt that Bennett was struck by one of the Lockwood brothers. There is a doubt as to the severity of the injuries incurred by the plaintiff and as to the real cause of the fight. A bloody shirt, collar and tie were produced as evidence but it was not made clear that all this sacrifice of human liquid was really made on the night of the fray.

Bennett, who has not been living with his wife and family since the alienation proceedings a year ago, was on his way to visit his daughter at Aisen on the night in question when he stopped at the Libertyville hotel for a few drinks, the certain amount of which could not be ascertained by either attorney. However his indulgence in beer reached quite large proportions before the drinking bout was completed. The two Lockwood brothers were there when Bennett arrived and all went well until far into the night when Bennett raised a beer bottle over Elmer and threateningly uttered, "I got your brother and I'll get you yet." Elmer became peeved and knocked Bennett to the floor but assisted him in rising. Then, according to the witnesses for the defense, the injured man went on his way. The fight occurred near midnight.

Bennett stated while on the stand that he was set upon by both brothers as he was leaving the hotel and his lip badly cut, his eyes hurt and generally disabled to the extent that he could remember little after the attack on him.

On Sunday Bennett, on his way to New Paltz, where he was to catch a train for New York, at which place his boat was, drove past the home of the two brothers and spoke cordially to Alonzo but not at all to the other brother. The defense tried to determine why he should go out of the way to pass the home of the brothers, who had treated him so cruelly the night before. According to Cohen, the proprietor of the hotel, Bennett passed the hotel on Sunday and displayed a bundle, in which was the bloody shirt which was exhibited in court by plaintiff's attorney. He said he was going to have something done in court about the fight.

Frank W. Brooks is counsel for the plaintiff and Francis C. Merritt for the defendants.

The case was continued in the afternoon.

Mr. Weber is an earnest and forceful preacher and those who fail to attend the meetings are missing more than they realize. The regular choir is assisted by C. E. Longyear and Miss Florence Marchant.

E. Marchant, who has been spending several weeks at his home on Connelly Heights, returned to his work at New Baltimore on Monday.

Mrs. Josie Hotelling and sister, Miss Ruth Marchant, were guests of Mrs. Mead Davis at Port Ewen on Sunday.

The members of the Girls Friendly Society were entertained by Miss Josephine Becktold on Thursday evening at her home on Connelly Heights.

A SCHOOL FROCK.

All Modish Goes This Maiden Back to Classroom.

A SATISFACTORY DESIGN.

This simple frock is made of navy blue and red plaid gaberdine and trimmed with white pearl buttons. A red patent leather belt matches the smart little four-in-hand of red velvet ribbon. The collar and cuffs are of white pique.

KITCHEN CUES.

Simple Ways of Doing Simple Things Intelligently and Well.

To prevent potatoes becoming black when cooked put them into cold water and when brought to the boil squeeze a little lemon juice in. They will then keep a good color and be of good flavor.

Before using tinware of any kind rub it well over with fresh lard. If treated in this way it will never rust.

Slip a thumb on the curtain rod when running it through the hem of the curtain.

The tops of pale covered evening gloves make very dainty shoes for babies.

For a homemade coal box procure a wooden lard bucket from the grocer. Remove the wire handle and clean thoroughly inside and outside with strong soda water, one pound to a gallon of boiling water. Purchase a three penny bottle of oak varnish and when the bucket is dry apply over evenly and quickly. Leave for several hours. Get two penny bronze handles and screw one on each side, and the article is complete. The outside cost of this is a quarter, and it looks as well as one costing several times that amount.

White satin shoes should always be kept in blue paper to prevent them from becoming discolored.

After fowl of any kind is cleaned the inside should be rubbed thoroughly with a piece of lemon before the dressing is put in.

When ivory handled knives look yellow rub them with fine sandpaper or emery. It will take off the spots and restore the whiteness.

If clothespins are dipped in white enamel paint and dried in the sun they can be kept perfectly clean and will not split or mark the clothes.

Tin that has become rusty of the surface may be cleaned by dipping the surface of a raw potato in fine brick and rubbing well with this.

Unbleached Muslin Spread.

Every woman likes to own a hand-made spread, but the majority of spreads call for such expensive materials that few women can afford to indulge in the luxury. However, here is a spread which is within almost every woman's reach. It can be duplicated for about $5. The spread is made of unbleached muslin. All over its surface conventional scrolls are outlined by means of huge French knots. On the spread in question white knots are used, but there is no reason why one could not use colored cotton to carry out the color scheme employed in one's bedroom. The edge of the spread is finished with cotton fringe.

In place of a quilting party why not have a spread party? The work will then be quickly and pleasantly done.

A Kitchen Hint.

Keep a piece of pumice stone in the kitchen to clean the irons with. It will instantly remove those particles of starch that adhere to the iron and will also remove rust or dirt. A careful rubbing with pumice before you put the irons on to heat will prevent any possibility of dirty marks on the delicate linens and laces.

COUNT ALBERT APPONYI

MENTION APPONYI AS ENVOY TO U. S.

Berlin, Jan. 13.—Advices received here from Vienna say that Count Albert Apponyi, the veteran Hungarian political leader, possibly may be chosen to fill the vacant post of Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to the United States. While there is no authoritative information on the subject here, it is thought in certain circles that the chances for him to receive the appointment are good.

Count Apponyi is sixty-nine years old. He has been a member of the Hungarian House of Deputies since 1872. Count Apponyi visited the United States in 1904.

Maybe.

"Montmorency, can your fiancée cook?"

"No, mother, but she can paint beautifully on china. She can paint the most natural grapes and peaches you ever saw."

"Well, maybe looking at them will appease hunger when there is no dinner ready."—Kansas City Journal.

Nice Table Ornament.

When Sir George Trevelyan was chief secretary for Ireland, in troublous times, the police made him carry a pistol about with him. One night after dinner he took it out of his pocket and put it on the table, saying to his host, "Pray forgive me, but if you knew how tired I am of carrying this thing about!"—London Standard.

THE GOOD WIFE.

A Treasure, Holding In Her Hands the Destiny of Posterity.

When a woman enters the marriage relation her sphere of influence is at once extended, and her horizon is no longer bounded by the people and circumstances of the moment.

She is building for posterity. In the joy and thoughtfulness which characterize her mind in the new relation there is a prophecy of unborn generations. Her life is to color other lives; her aspirations are to fix to a great extent the position and future of her band and family.

If she is cultured, pure and refined these qualities will characterize the home which she creates. The higher the degree of her culture, her purity, her refinement, the more will these qualities characterize the home of which she is the center.

The personality that a woman takes with her in her marriage is her real dowry. If her dowry can be reckoned in numerals only, no matter how many they be, wrecked indeed will be her husband, impoverished her children.

But if she possesses industry, gentleness, self abnegation, purity and intelligence, combined with capability, she is in herself a treasure of treasures.—New York Weekly.

FAMOUS PLACE NAMES.

Why Should They Not Be Called Alike All Over the World?

It is perhaps too much to expect that a universal meridian or universal time will ever be established, still less that we shall have universal money or a universal secondary language. All these things might be brought about if we could only get rid of our prejudices.

It is not, however, too much to hope that the present confusion of place names should be got rid of. Why the English and the French should persistently describe as Cologne and Mayence, cities which their own inhabitants never call anything but Köln and Mainz, it is difficult to understand, and there is certainly no excuse for our pronouncing the name of the Bavarian capital as "Munich," as if in scorn of the dwellers therein, who call it, as nearly as English letters will reproduce the sound, "Minchen."

Why should an Italian gratuitously misname London "Londra?" We really ought to know how our own capital should be called.

As to Polish place names, also Przemysl and the like, only an international commission could decide.—London Globe.

And More Expensive.

Breaking the bank at Monte Carlo is about as improbable as breaking a bad cold, but the effort is more fascinating.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MRS. WILLIAM ALEXANDER.

TO ENROLL WOMEN OF ENTIRE COUNTRY FOR WAR SERVICE.

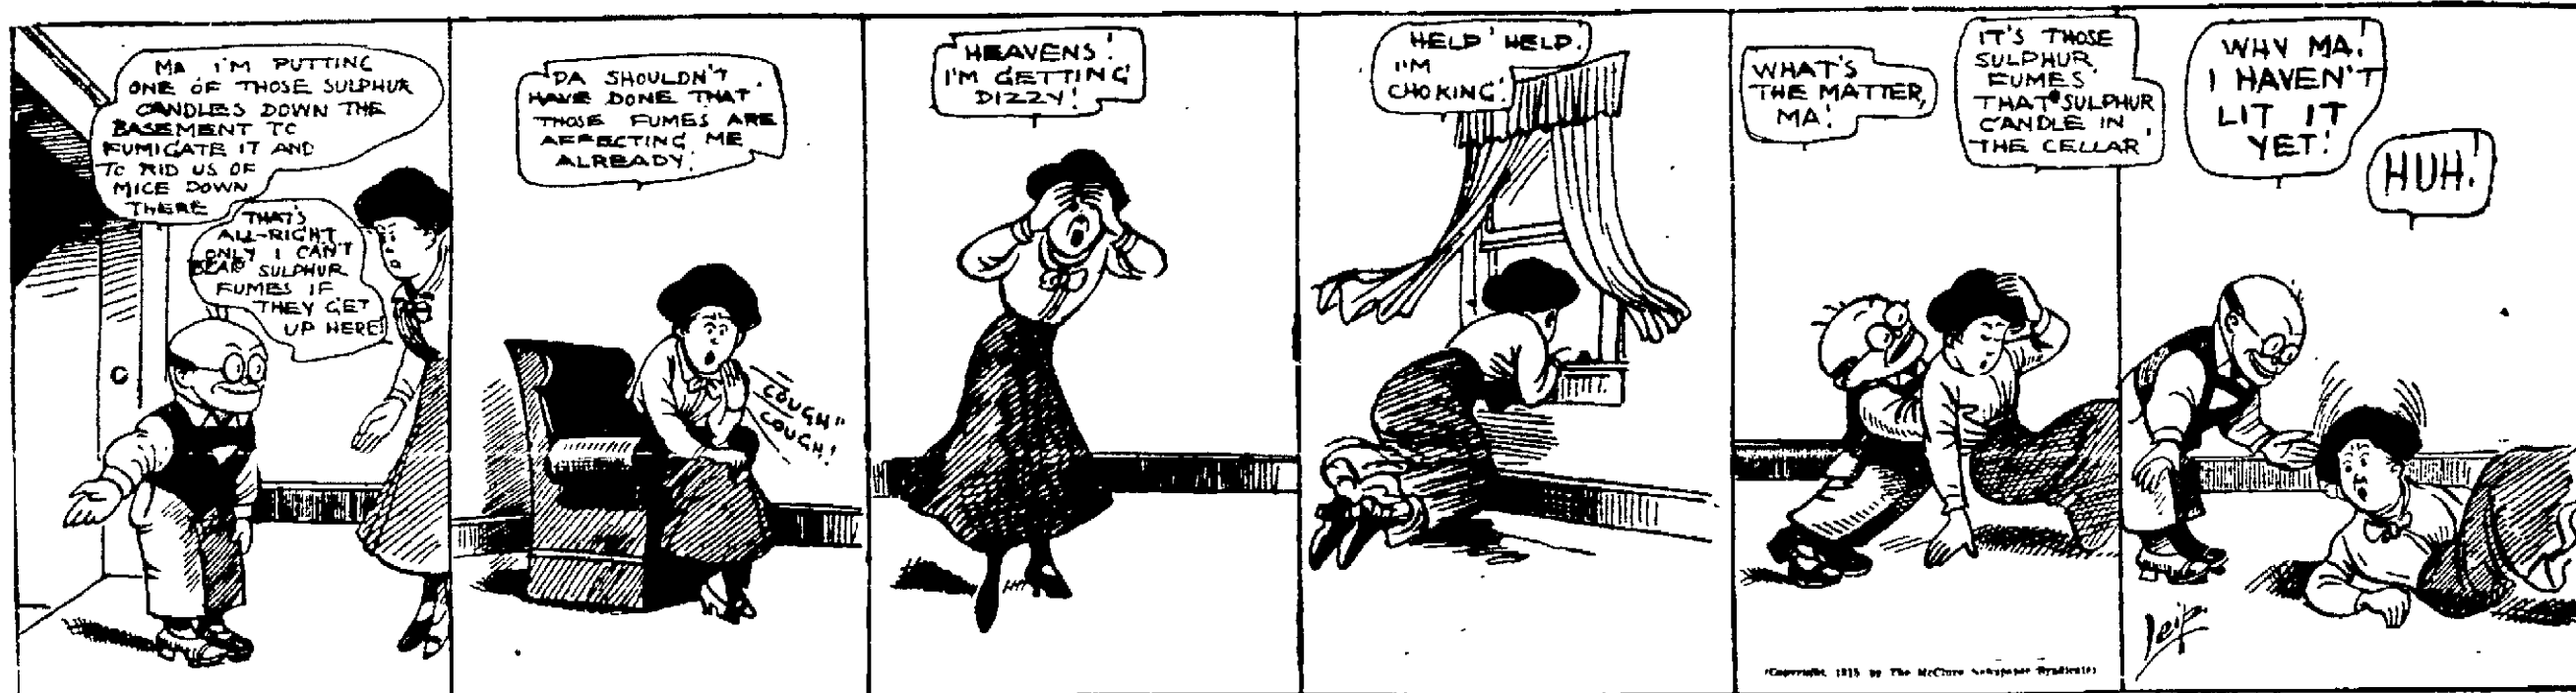

New York, Jan. 13.—"Prepare dress is now a national issue and a feminine one," says Mrs. William Alexander, president of the National Aid Society. She started the organization which is preparing the women of the country for individual service to the government in behalf of more adequate national defense.

"This is our time to show the only kind of patriotism that counts," Mrs. Alexander continued.

"The tragedy of it all is that the women of Europe were not prepared for no one helped them get ready for the time when homes should be broken up, when blacksmithing should take the place of sewing and ambulance work the place of afternoon teas.

Then very briefly, Mrs. Alexander sketched the purpose of this organization of women which proposes to enroll every woman and girl in the country in the particular division of work to which she is best adapted in case a sudden grave crisis should arise and the government should need such assistance.

The plan calls for a card index which will classify all women as to their various capacities of aid—nurses, doctors, motor-drivers of all kind, those who can sew, cook, read, teach languages, write, do mechanical work, clerical work, make hospital supplies, or sing to wounded patients.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 13, 1916.

All records for brutality in the maltreatment of American citizens on land or sea pale into insignificance beside the story of the slaughter of seventeen Chinese men by Villa bandits near Chihuahua City. Since Carranza has been formally recognized by Washington as the ruler of Mexico, there was nothing for Secretary Lansing to do but to make a prompt demand upon the First Chief to punish the murderers, but nobody seems to believe that he is able to do so. If he fails after being given a reasonable chance, there will almost surely be armed intervention by the United States, acting either alone or in conjunction with the other American republics. Such is the sentiment of Congress, as shown in the debates on Wednesday. It is a most irritating circumstance that in pursuing such a course we shall in a sense become a cat's-paw for Villa, who instigated this outrage for the purpose of revenging himself upon Carranza by bringing about intervention. The probability is that Carranza will find it necessary, in order to keep what hold he has upon the Mexicans, to proclaim war upon the United States if they intervene. So, after this long period of disgraceful "watchful waiting," we find ourselves in a worse situation than at the beginning. There is little use at this time in rehearsing the blunders which Wilson has made from first to last in treating this affair. After sowing the wind for so long we are in for reaping the whirlwind.

Prominent lawyers in many States, including seven former Presidents of the American Bar Association, have signed a letter to President Wilson urging him to appoint William H. Taft to the place on the Supreme Court made vacant by the death of Justice Lamar. Their argument is that he "is better qualified than any other man successfully to discharge the high duties of a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States." A recommendation like this ought to have great weight with a man who actually possesses the qualities which President Wilson professes. Of course, he is receiving other recommendations, and they ought to be published too. It has often been proposed that "pittiless publicity" be turned upon all recommendations of appointments, but no one has yet had the nerve to introduce such a policy. It might result in a series of political earthquakes. The trouble with most of the aspirants for appointments is that they have no claim except that based on the amount of "dirty work" they have done.

Military instruction for a few hours each week for public school boys is a not unreasonable suggestion in line with national defense, although a storm of criticism from the anti-militarists may prove an obstacle to the adoption of the plan. Setting-up exercises are most valuable to good physical health and an erect carriage. The latter alone would prove of unmeasured benefit to high school students of today, and it is best attained through drill. While it may not be found necessary to take up actual rifle practice, such literal training of the young idea how to shoot would be of utmost usefulness if the call ever came. Deferred until early manhood, military training does not make so direct an appeal to young men whose time at that period of life is almost wholly taken up with new duties and privileges. Rear Admiral Higginson, a firm believer in military training in the schools, supports his position with sound arguments. Surely the development of the body thus secured would seem a benefit more than outweighing any false notions gained about militarism, of which our idealists have such an overwhelming dread.

Although the fruit auction sales of the State Department of Foods and Markets seem dead in New York City, the idea that nothing but nice things should be said about them is not general among trade publications, which again point out the fizzle of this sales system. To carry on a successful auction, even under the auspices of a paternal commonwealth which foots the bills, it is necessary to bring out buyers as well as sellers. Only the latter were in evidence at Market Commissioner Dillon's last effort at an auction.

Yet the State has made a large investment in expenses and salaries to carry on this enterprise, its return approximating 2½ per cent, far below the commissions of private concerns. But fruit is comparatively cheap this year. Even auctions under State control cannot shift the grip of those two veteran market manipulators, Messrs. Supply and Demand. The quicker the State realizes this truth, the better for the taxpayers and the confiding producers from upstate whose expectations were so high at the advent of this State Auction Market scheme.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Bix—"A fire broke out at the prison last night." "Broke out, did it?" Then you might call it a fire escape—what? — Boston Transcript.

"Jags certainly has the luck of getting up against it." "Yes, we had our front door painted freshly the other day, and he got up against that, too." — Baltimore American.

"Seems to think well of himself, eh?" "Do you know what kind of a fellow he is?" "Tell me." "He takes stock of himself a dozen times a day for fear he'll overlook some of his good points." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

"I verily believe that inanimate things sometimes enter into the spirit of a festive occasion." "I know it. Last night when I was going on a blowout, my automobile chimed in with a couple of its own." — Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Would your wife vote for you as a candidate for office?" "I don't think there's any use of my bothering my head about that," replied Mr. Meekton. "I don't believe Henrietta would let me run in the first place." — Washington Star.

Crawford—"You seem to think your wife the most unreasonable woman in the world." Crabshaw—"You see, I mortgaged the house to buy her an auto, and now she wants to raise money on the car to purchase Christmas presents." — Judge.

The Intelligent Juror.

"It is not uncommon with lawyers when addressing a jury to single out one member who appears to them to be one of the most intelligent, and, therefore, the one most likely to be influenced by their appeals," said a well known jurist recently. "But it does not always work out advantageously," he continued. "All the testimony in a case recently tried in Texas had been taken up, and the judge had charged the jury, when suddenly loomed up the alleged intelligent juror against whom both counsel had thundered their impassioned appeals. He was thrust for information and straightway addressed the court:

"I have been bothered a lot by two words the lawyers use here all the time."

"What are they?" demanded the court, expecting, undoubtedly, to be called upon to expound a fortiori or some other abstruse term.

"Plaintiff" and "defendant," said the juror. "I don't know just what they mean." — Lippincott Magazine.

Just Like Him.

Sandy had been photographed, and as he was looking intently at his "pictur," Tam McPherson came along.

"What's that ye hiv ther?" he asked.

"My photograph," replied Sandy, showing it proudly. "Whit d'ye think of it?"

"Mon, it's fine," exclaimed Tam in great admiration. "Its just like ye, tae. An' whit nicht the like o' the cost?"

"I dinna ken," replied Sandy. "I hims paid ye."

"Mon," said Tam, more firmly than ever, "it's awful like ye." — Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

The Aimless Man.

"The man without an aim in life," said Charles M. Schwab in a Y. M. C. A. address in Loretto, "is in as absurd a position, compared with the man with a well marked aim, as for example, the drunk in the railway station."

"A drunk got out of a taxicab at a railway station, leaped over to the ticket window, touched his opera hat and said:

"Give me a hic—return, please."

"Where do you want to go to?" said the ticket agent impatiently.

"The drunk stroked his chin and considered a minute. Then he said, with a polite smile:

"What—hic—trains have you?" — Cincinnati Enquirer.

Politics.

Governor Whitman, of New York said in an address in Albany:

"Politics may perhaps be rotten, but they are certainly not as rotten as the average reformer believes."

"The average reformer thinks that our American politics are like the politics of Turkey. A traveler, you know, said to a Turkish official, 'And in this country, as in ours, do political officeholders retire at a certain age with a life pension?'"

SUBURBAN NEWS.

The holidays are past and gone and our town has recovered from the shock it received when so many of its young people were home to celebrate things a bit. Now we are back in the same old rut, some days seeing nobody pass for hours but the mail man, and he is always a welcome guest for we look forward to his coming, bringing us cheer to relieve our minds of the quietude; a vast difference from the years gone by when the hum of the manufacturing plant was an attraction which kept our men at home. But now, how different; all is gone and the men have gone, too, to seek work in other places; but still a few of the girls remain, and now and then a man returns to get one of our good lassies and take her along with him. Ere long another of our charming young women will be taken away by a Kingston chap.

Transportation and Civilization—

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Copyright, 1915, by Frank Crane

Did you ever think how much CIVILIZATION is a matter of TRANSPORTATION?

People were narrow, barbarous and cruel in olden times, because they hardly ever TRAVELED. They were PROVINCIAL. Hence full of PREJUDICE and IGNORANCE.

The Railway train and the Steamship make men BROADMINDED.

The railroad links your town with the WORLD.

It takes you everywhere. And it brings to you STRANGERS, PAPERS, letters and the best of all creation.

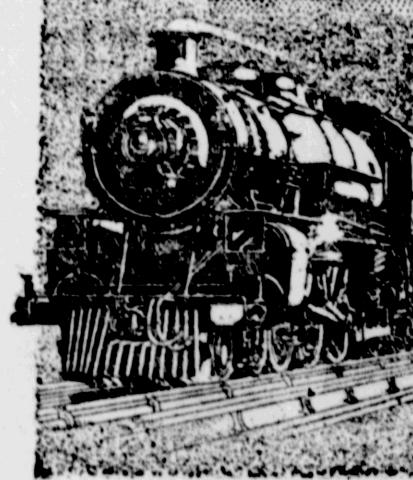

The Railroad needs YOUR THOUGHTFUL CONSIDERATION when questions of policy affecting its interests are discussed with you.

THE above from the pen of Dr. Frank Crane is reproduced in this advertisement with his permission.

In such expressions we note with pleasure a growing confidence between the public and railroads who dedicate their facilities and activities to the Public Service, the motto of the New York Central Lines.

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Jan. 13.—One of the most attractive and interesting business and social affairs held recently was the Auxiliary Club when it met last Friday in M. E. Church parlor, with Mrs. Byron Clearwater, Mrs. Abram Bloomer, Mrs. Walter Constable as hostesses. On account of illness of Mrs. Constable, Mrs. Daniel Kurtz was the hostess in her place. There were fifty present and several invited guests beside, and at the proper hour, the president, Mrs. R. H. Decker, let the gavel fall and business was taken up and the manner in which the women considered the problems presented them gave evidence they were imbued with a spirit of action, for there were many absorbing topics and the discussions were most interesting. Reports of officers and standing committees were full of interest to all, and testified to the value and increase of work. Great interest is being taken in the coming fair. They decided to have entertainments often and were informed by a member that a fine entertainment will be put on the last of January or the first week in February. Then later on, the members of the dramatic club will be seen in a good strong drama. There is nothing that brings heart within touching distance of heart like the tongue, hence speaking seems nature's ordained means of informing and moving people. While this is true generally, in no country is it more specifically true than in ours, and we are positive these people will try to please all, and when the time comes we hope to see them well patronized. The various committees have specialized their work, and all take a personal interest in the present and future welfare of their church. At this meeting 5 o'clock the motion to adjourn was carried. Then a reception was held, when the hostesses served a bountiful luncheon of ham and pimento sandwiches, jelly, pickles, baked beans, cake and coffee, which brought a pleasant relaxation after absorbing business discussions. It was late when all expressed pleasure to the hostesses for the very delightful afternoon of business and social intercourse. Simplicity has always been the keynote of the social side of auxiliary meetings, for only in this atmosphere are the finer social and spiritual forces generated. And these meetings are appreciated and looked forward to with great pleasure and each one seems to vie with the other as they throw open their homes and the church to receive the club members. The next meeting will be held February 4, and at that time they expect some new members.

Joseph Harcourt, who has been very ill, glad to report, is improving nicely. Their son and wife have spent some time with them and now have returned to their home in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Gilbert Terwilliger, who is staying in New York city for some time, as at present in this place for a short time.

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Palmer attended the funeral of a relative of Mr. Palmer at Ardonia last Saturday.

Miss Fanny Bond gave a party on Monday evening to a few friends, who enjoyed the pleasure of game and refreshments were served, and all had a delightful time.

Lorin Schantz, the ice king, is harvesting some fine ice. He has the houses partly filled at present.

Miss Clara Manderschied was hostess Monday evening to the Queen Esther Circle. They had several members present and a great deal of business was talked over and a social time enjoyed. The hostess served fine refreshments and expressions of pleasure were extended her for the pleasure of the evening.

Mrs. Philip Schantz is confined to her home with the grip.

James Callahan of Waterbury, Conn., has been visiting his mother and brother, Lorin, for a short time.

Mrs. Abraham Brinckerhoff and daughter, Belle, were shoppers in Poughkeepsie on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Winans of Poughkeepsie spent last Sunday with Mrs. George Main of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Zophar Terwilliger have spent a few days the past week in Poughkeepsie.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Marsh were shoppers in Poughkeepsie on Saturday.

Mrs. J. S. Mack was a Poughkeepsie visitor last week.

The U. D. Society were entertained by one of the members, namely, Miss Frances Bruyn, Saturday. They did fancy work and woman-like, visited, after which refreshments were served and a very delightful afternoon was spent.

Miss Bessie Dickenson was the guest of a friend in Barrytown on Saturday.

Leo Frange of Brooklyn has been up here at his old home, and visited with his daughter, Mrs. Jack Lucas.

Miss D. Denney of West Park was a guest of friends in Highland last week.

Mrs. Gilbert Drake and Raymond Green from West Park were visitors in this place recently.

Mr. and Mrs. William Grim were here from West Park spending New Year's day with relatives and had a grand time on that day.

William Terwilliger is just enjoying the beautiful snow. He has purchased a new horse and sleigh, and while it can't come up to the auto in speed, when you can't run one you can resort to the other, and the family are having sport and enjoying old time customs of sleighriding. The merry jingle of bells lets the people know you are coming, and from the looks now, with another snow storm, all will realize they are not in Florida.

The library opened up on Wednesday. All had a fine time. Several interesting addresses were made and there are a number of books to which the people are given use of in the future. This is a grand thing for our village.

COUNTY FARM BUREAU.

Letters Received by The Freeman From Appreciative Readers.

Southern Ulster Fruit Farm, Spring Glen, Jan. 10, 1916. To The Readers Of The Freeman and all interested in Agriculture: As agriculture or tilling of the soil is the keynote to all business enterprise, the demonstrations given by the manager of our Farm Bureau in this section of the county, the past year was very instructive and much benefit derived to the few that availed themselves of the opportunity. Why not put our shoulder to the wheel and become a member of the Farm Bureau of Ulster county. Keep ourselves abreast with our neighboring counties in agriculture and the eradication of insect pests which our Manager W. H. Hook is able and willing to help us.

A. B. TICE.

Editor Freeman:

All praise to The Freeman and Manager W. H. Hook of the Farm Bureau for the Farm Bureau story. 'Twas complete and exhaustive. 'Twas great. Hats off to Manager Hook and The Freeman.

Fire at Hay Press Factory.

Kingston's fire bug after being in retirement for a short time got busy again Wednesday evening and attempted to set fire to the Hendricks hay press factory on Cornell street, which is vacant at the present time. Fortunately the incipient fire was discovered in time by a young man living on O'Neil street who turned in an alarm from Box 64, shortly after 10 o'clock to which the firemen quickly responded. The quick work of the firemen prevented the building from being entirely destroyed and the damage was slight. Two lines of hose were strung but were not used as it was found that the flames could be extinguished with the chemicals which were done. An investigation by Chief Chipp of the fire department showed that the fire was plainly the work of the fire bug as oily waste had been used and the fire had started from the outside of the building. The hay press factory was last used by the National Biscuit Company as a warehouse while their present building was being erected.

INTERIOR OF VOORMEZELLE CHURCH.

WHAT ONE BIG GERMAN SHELL DID.

The destruction that can be wrought by one of the big 42 centimetre shells fired from the German guns is well illustrated in this picture, which shows the interior of the church at Voormezelle, France, after one of the big shells had exploded inside. The shell came in above the altar, leaving the big whole above the crucifix, but miraculously sparing it.

BATTERED BENNETT DEMANDS DAMAGES

In county court this morning No. 10, John Bennett against Elmer and Alonzo Lockwood was taken up for trial. The suit is an action to recover $1,000 damages incurred in the indenture of the plaintiff's physical health by the two brothers in whose hearts, it is argued by the plaintiff's attorney has been burning a fire of hate ever since Alonzo was determined to have alienated Bennett's wife affections in December, 1914. As a result of this verdict against Alonzo he was obliged to pay Bennett $1,200.

According to the stories told by the witnesses the alleged assault occurred at Cohen's Hotel at Libertyville on the night of Saturday August 1, 1915 and there was no doubt that Bennett was struck by one of the Lockwood brothers. There is a doubt as to the severity of the injuries incurred by the plaintiff and as to the real cause of the fight. A bloody shirt, collar and tie were produced as evidence but it was not made clear that all this sacrifice of human blood was really made on the night of the fray.

Bennett, who has not been living with his wife and family since the judgment proceedings a year ago, was on his way to visit his daughter when he stopped at the Libertyville hotel for a few drinks, the certain amount of which could not be ascertained by either attorney. However his indulgence in beer reached quite large proportions before the drinking bout was completed. The two Lockwood brothers were there when Bennett arrived and all went well until far into the night when Bennett raised a beer bottle over Elmer and threateningly uttered, "I got your brother and I'll get you yet." Elmer became peeved and knocked Bennett to the floor but assisted him in rising. Then, according to the witnesses for the defense, the injured man went on his way. The fight occurred near midnight.

Bennett stated while on the stand that he was set upon by both brothers as he was leaving the hotel and his head cut his eyes hurt and generally disabled to the extent that he could remember little after the attack on him.

On Sunday Bennett, on his way to New Paltz where he was to catch a train for New York, at which place his boat was, drove past the home of the two brothers and spoke cordially to Alonzo but not at all to the other brother. The defense tried to determine why he should go out of the way to pass the home of the brothers, who had treated him so cruelly the night before. According to Cohen, the proprietor of the hotel, Bennett passed the hotel on Sunday and displayed a bundle, in which was the bloody shirt which was exhibited in court by plaintiff's attorney. He said he was going to have something done in court about the fight.

Frank W. Brooks is counsel for the plaintiff and Francis C. Merritt for the defendants.

The case was continued in the afternoon.

A SCHOOL FROCK.

All Modish Goes This Maiden Back to Classroom.

A SATISFACTORY DESIGN.

This simple frock is made of navy blue and red plaid sardine and trimmed with white pearl buttons. A red patent leather belt matches the smart little four-in-hand of red velvet ribbon. The collar and cuffs are of white pique.

KITCHEN CUES.

Simple Ways of Doing Simple Things Intelligently and Well.

To prevent potatoes becoming black when cooked put them into cold water and when brought to the boil squeeze a little lemon juice in. They will then keep a good color and be of good flavor.

Before using tinware of any kind rub it well over with fresh lard. If treated in this way it will never rust. Slip a thumb on the cuff and when running it through the hem of the curtain.

The tops of pale covered evening gloves make very dainty shoes for babies.

For a homemade coal box procure a wooden lard bucket from the grocer. Remove the wire handle and clean thoroughly inside and outside with strong soda water, one pound to a gallon of boiling water. Purchase a three penny bottle of oak varnish and when the bucket is dry apply over evenly and quickly. Leave for several hours. Get two penny bronze handles and screw one on each side, and the article is complete. The outside cost of this is a quarter, and it looks as well as one costing several times that amount.

White satin shoes should always be kept in blue paper to prevent them from becoming discolored.

After fowl of any kind is cleaned the inside should be rubbed thoroughly with a piece of lemon before the dressage is put in.

When ivory handled knives look yellow rub them with fine sandpaper or emery. It will take off the spots and restore the whiteness.

If clothespins are dipped in white enamel paint and dried in the sun they can be kept perfectly clean and will not split or mark the clothes.

Tin that has become rusty of stained may be cleaned by dipping the cut surface of a raw potato in fine brick and rubbing well with this.

Unbleached Muslin Spread.

Every woman likes to own a hand-made spread but the majority of spreads call for such expensive materials that few women can afford to indulge in the luxury. However, here is a spread which is within almost every woman's reach. It can be duplicated for about $5. The spread is made of unbleached muslin. All over its surface conventional scrolls are outlined by means of huge French knots. On the spread in question white knots are used, but there is no reason why one could not use colored cotton to carry out the color scheme employed in one's bedroom. The edge of the spread is finished with cotton fringe.

In place of a quilting party why not have a spread party? The work will then be quickly and pleasantly done.

A Kitchen Hint.

Keep a piece of pumice stone in the kitchen to clean the irons with. It will instantly remove those particles of starch that adhere to the iron and will also remove rust or dirt. A careful rubbing with pumice before you put the irons on to heat will prevent any possibility of dirty marks on the delicate linens and laces.

COUNT ALBERT APPONYI

MENTION APPONYI AS ENVOY TO U. S.

Berlin, Jan. 12.—Advice received here from Vienna say that Count Albert Apponyi, the veteran Hungarian political leader, possibly may be chosen to fill the vacant post of Austro-Hungarian Ambassador to the United States. While there is no authoritative information on this subject here, it is thought in certain circles that the chances for him to receive the appointment are good.

Count Apponyi is sixty-nine years old. He has been a member of the Hungarian House of Deputies since 1872. Count Apponyi visited the United States in 1904.

Maybe.

"Montmorency can your fiancee cook?"

"No, mother, but she can paint beautifully on china. She can paint the most natural grapes and peaches you ever saw."

"Well, maybe looking at them will appease hunger when there is no dinner ready."—Kansas City Journal.

Nice Table Ornament.

When Sir George Trevelyan was chief secretary for Ireland, in troublous times, the police made him carry a pistol about with him. One night after dinner he took it out of his pocket and put it on the table, saying to his host, "Pray forgive me, but if you knew how tired I am of carrying this thing about."—London Standard.

THE GOOD WIFE.

A Treasure, Holding In Her Hands the Destiny of Posterity.

When a woman enters the marriage relation her sphere of influence is at once extended, and her horizon is no longer bounded by the people and circumstances of the moment.

She is building for posterity. In the joy and thoughtfulness which characterize her mind in the new relation there is a prophecy of unborn generations. Her life is to color other lives; her aspirations are to fix to a great extent the position and future of her kind and family.

If she is cultured, pure and refined these qualities will characterize the home which she creates. The higher the degree of her culture, her purity, her refinement, the more will these qualities characterize the home of which she is the center.

The personality that a woman takes with her in her marriage is her real dowry. If her dowry can be reckoned in numerals only, no matter how many they be, wrecked indeed will be her husband, impoverished her children.

But if she possesses industry, gentleness, self abnegation, purity and intelligence, combined with capability, she is in herself a treasure of treasures.—New York Weekly.

FAMOUS PLACE NAMES.

Why Should They Not Be Called Alike All Over the World?

It is perhaps too much to expect that a universal meridian or universal time will ever be established, still less that we shall have universal money or a universal secondary language. All these things might be brought about if we could only get rid of our prejudices.

It is not, however, too much to hope that the present confusion of place names should be got rid of. Why the English and the French should persistently describe as Cologne and Mayence, cities which their own inhabitants never call anything but Köln and Mainz, it is difficult to understand, and there is certainly no excuse for our pronouncing the name of the Bavarian capital as "Munick," as if in scorn of the dwellers therein, who call it, as nearly as English letters will reproduce the sound, "Minchen."

Why should an Italian gratuitously misname London "Londra"? We really ought to know how our own capital should be called.

As to Polish place names, also Przemysl and the like, only an international commission could decide.—London Globe.

And More Expensive.

Breaking the bank at Monte Carlo is about as improbable as breaking a bad cold, but the effort is more fascinating.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

MRS. WILLIAM ALEXANDER TO ENROLL WOMEN OF ENTIRE COUNTRY FOR WAR SERVICE.

New York, Jan. 12.—"Preparedness is now a national issue and a feminine one," says Mrs. William Alexander, president of the National Aid Society. She started the organization which is preparing the women of the country for individual service to the government in behalf of more adequate national defense.

"This is our time to show the only kind of patriotism that counts," Mrs. Alexander continued.

The tragedy of it all is that the women of Europe were not prepared for no one helped them get ready for the time when homes should be broken up, when blacksmiths should take the place of sewing and ambulance work the place of after noon teas.

They very briefly, Mrs. Alexander sketched the purpose of this organization of women which proposes to enroll every woman and girl in the country in the particular division of work to which she is best adapted in case a sudden grave crisis should arise and the government should need such assistance.

The plan calls for a card index which will classify all women as to their various capacities of aid—nurses, doctors, motor-drivers of all kind, those who can sew, cook, read, teach languages, write, do mechanical work, clerical work, make hospital supplies, or sing to wounded patients.

LIBRARY HAS LESS THAN 80 MEMBERS

Interesting Facts Brought Out at the Annual Meeting of the Kingston City Library Association.

With over fifty thousand books in circulation in the city of Kingston, less than eighty people pay membership dues annually to the Kingston City Library, and the annual report of the treasurer submitted to the library trustees at their annual meeting Wednesday night shows a deficit of $382.08 for the year.

Membership dues are one dollar for each individual, but some individuals make payments of a larger sum for their dues, so that the total membership with these facts in mind can be imagined when attention is called to the fact that receipts from membership dues for the entire year amounted to eighty-one dollars.

Cities and villages having a smaller population than Kingston in many cases have a library membership of more than a thousand, with corresponding receipts, and a careful perusal of the reports of the treasurer and librarian will suggest to many Kingstonians in what direction their duty toward the library lies.

Officers Re-elected.

Mrs. Lizzie R. Lawton, Charles H. DeLaVergne and Wesley D. Hale were re-elected trustees to succeed themselves, and at a subsequent meeting of the entire board of trustees, the officers of the library association were re-elected as follows: Myron J. Michael, president; Mrs. Lizzie R. Lawton, vice president; Frank Cockendall, treasurer; Charles H. DeLaVergne, secretary.

Treasurer's Report.

The treasurer's report of receipts and disbursements was as follows:

KINGSTON CITY LIBRARY.

Treasurer's report for the year ending January 12, 1916.

Library Maintenance.

Receipts—
From warrants accepted by city treasurer $3,000.00
From membership fees $1.00
From fines $180.94

From gifts and other sources $12.45
Total cash received $3,074.39
Disbursements—
For employees and labor $2,119.21
For books, periodicals and binding $10.17
For repairs, supplies and miscellaneous $27.95
For fuel and light $42.04
For telephone service $5.75
For insurance $200.00
For postage, printing and stationery $101.35
Total cash disbursed $4,656.47
Deficit for year $1,582.08

Increasing Public Use of the Library.

The increasing public use of the library is shown by the report of Miss Marie Herbert, librarian, who states that a careful study of the statistics for 1915 shows an increasing use of the library not only for recreation but also for serious reading.

In 1914 more books were loaned for home reading than in any previous year, but in 1915 the previous record was exceeded by 6,309 volumes, or 11 per cent.

Over 50,000 Books Loaned.

The total circulation for 1915 was 55,434. In the last five years the circulation has increased 27 per cent.

Sixty-four per cent of the books loaned were fiction, which is a good per cent in a small library and in a city where there are not special inducements for study. Five years ago the percentage was 73.

The increase has been larger in the children's room than among adults. In this department, the circulation in 1914 was 12,756; in 1915 it was 15,441, an increase of 17 per cent. With a special librarian trained for children's work and more juvenile books, which are urgently needed, the work with children could be greatly increased. Having only two people on the library staff and a rush of work, the library is not able to give the children the attention they ought to have. The supply of juvenile books is inadequate. The percentage of fiction in this department is 54.

The uptown branch was successful, over 4,000 books having been given out there. Since its removal from Kingston Academy to School No. 7, the circulation has increased.

Saturday night distribution at the Federation House was discontinued because the books were not used enough to make it worth while. A regular branch with reading room is needed downtown.

Use of Reference Books Increased.
During the year the library was visited by 30,814 people, an increase of 3,908 over the previous year. (These figures do not mean 30,814 separate individuals, but instead that that was the number of visits by people wishing to secure or consult books.) The use of reference books increased 30 per cent.

Books added during the year numbered 864, of which 354 were by purchase and 462 were gifts. Four hundred and thirty-two were discarded because worn out, leaving a net gain of 423 books. This does not include unbound magazines and pamphlets.

In addition to traveling libraries, many books are being borrowed from individuals from the State Library. Between 200 and 300 pictures were received during the year, which have been exhibited. Some of which have been used by high school teachers in their work.

Classification of Books Loaned.

The circulation of books by classes was as follows:

Unbound magazines, 6,085; general works, 529; philosophy, 206; religion, 288; sociology, 3,120; philology, 370; science, 740; useful arts, 783; fine arts, 378; literature, 2,674; history, 1,550; travel, 1,085; biography, 829; fiction, 35,097. Total, 55,434.

EDWARD F. STOCK.

Edward F. Stock, the newly elected Chancellor of the Franklin Lodge, No. 37, Knights of Pythias, became a member of the order during the year 1913, and by his active work in and for the advancement of Franklin Lodge served as Inner Guard for one year at the end of which he was elected to the office of vice chancellor, which office he filled to the credit of himself and his lodge and in December 1915, was unanimously elected to the office of Chancellor. Mr. Stock is widely known throughout Pythian circles in this district and is to be congratulated on his advancement in the Pythian Order. Mr. Stock holds the position as cigar packing foreman with G. W. Van Slyke & Horton, cigar manufacturers of this city.

Wright is All Right.

The portrait of Chester Young which appears in The Freeman today is from a photograph made by V. T. Wright, the widely known Ellenville photographer, who knows how to do things in a hurry. Mr. Young sat for the picture, the plate was developed, dried, retouched, printed and ready for delivery all within one hour. Mr. Wright was once a press photographer, where "get there" is the motto, and when he knew The Freeman was in a hurry he "got there."

Conference of Veterinarians.

Dr. Wright J. Smith has returned home from Ithaca, where he has been attending the eighth annual conference for veterinarians at the New York State Veterinary College of Cornell University. The subjects discussed in the professional papers which were read, and in the debates which followed, covered a wide range of veterinarian activity.

$7,250 For Loss of Leg.

The trial of the suit in behalf of four-year-old Nathan Rosenberg against the Brooklyn Heights Railroad Company for the loss of his right leg before Justice Kelby in the supreme court in New York was continued Wednesday when the boy's attorneys agreed to accept $7,250 as a settlement.

St. James's Sunday School Board.

The annual meeting of the Sunday school board of St. James's Church will be held Friday evening of this week at the parsonage on Pearl street at 8 o'clock. Dr. and Mrs. Baragwanath will act as host and hostess on that occasion. All the officers and teachers are urged to be present.

"Coffee Don't Hurt Me"

Can he get away with it?

The drug, caffeine, in coffee, about 2 1/2 grains to the average cup, hurts many coffee drinkers, at some time of life, and often hurts them hard.

Caffeine is a powerful irritant that unsteadies the nerves, races the heart, disorganizes the digestive organs and plays havoc with the health of a large proportion of coffee users.

Of course, there are some who go on drinking coffee for years, without apparent harm, at least they don't suspect it, until the cumulative drug, caffeine, has got in its work. Isn't it the best plan to play safe with health—quit coffee and use

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink made of wheat and a small portion of molasses tastes much like mild, high-grade Java coffee; yet contains no drug or other harmful elements.

Postum comes in two forms: the original Postum Cereal, must be well-boiled, 15c and 25c packages; Instant Postum, the soluble form, can be made in the cup, at table, by adding hot water, 30c and 50c tins. Both kinds are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

The better health that follows quitting coffee has shown thousands

COLONIAL GLEE CLUB SHOW A NOVELTY

The entertainment which the Colonial Glee Club is putting on at the Kingston Opera House on Monday and Tuesday of next week is of such a nature that it might very properly be called a spectacular vaudeville show with high class musical specialties.

The humor of the old-time minstrel "first part" is interspersed with musical numbers some of which sung by the endmen are the very newest and most laughable comic songs, and others of a high character sung by some of the best singers in the city.

Elmer E. Eastmead, whose voice is well known to Kingston people, will delight the audience by his rendering of "Mighty Lak a Rose" with a humming accompaniment by the chorus. John E. McCarty has not been heard publicly in Kingston before, but his intimate friends can anticipate the pleasure which is in store for the audience. His voice is a pure tenor beautifully placed and very unusual in quality. His solo will be one of the choice bits on the program. Philip B. Fitzpatrick is another fine singer whose voice will be a revelation to Kingston people.

One of the most amusing numbers will be a comic sextette conducted by one of the endmen in a manner that would provoke laughter at a constitutional convention.

The finale which terminates the first part of the program is from one of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas, and will be instantly recognized by lovers of their music as the one which Sullivan considered the most brilliant chorus he ever wrote. The women's voices in the finale will make possible an effect not usually attained in a minstrel show.

Between the acts there will be an exhibition of clog-dancing by John Fox and James Lawrence. This is an act which they have put on in vaudeville in New York with great success.

The number "Hello Frisco" will be an attractive one and will be presented with the same scenic accessories as were used in the "Follies of 1915." Miss Hilda Rifenbary will be on the wire at Frisco and John E. McCarthy will hold the telephone at the New York end. The young ladies of the chorus will represent the central stations through which the wire runs.

"Bargain Day," the little one-act farce, which will be acted by Miss Tessa Gellart and Martin Netter, is one of the funniest things ever written, and is now running on one of the vaudeville circuits with tremendous success.

Probably the most amusing number of the entertainment will be King Kole's Kingdom which is last on the program. This skit has never been produced on any stage in Europe, Asia, Africa or America, and probably never will be again. It's the only opportunity the public will ever have to see it in its present form. New York managers need not offer to buy or produce it as the owners could not be induced to part with the rights though offers from moving picture houses might be considered. A film production of King Kole, his adviser and his jester when the enemies' aeroplane drops bombs on the front lawn of the palace, would be a movie that would draw crowds. P. B. Fitzpatrick as King Kole can give De Wolf Hopper food for thought, while Ezra Abrahams as the jester would make Charlie Chaplin jealous. Burt Davis, the royal adviser, is a scream, and Dan Cronan (General Debility) as he bellows his orders at his mighty army and inspects his troops is worth the price of admission.

Tickets for the minstrels are for sale all over town at the usual places and may be exchanged for reserved seats at the theater box office beginning Friday morning. There is no additional charge for the reserved seats.

The entire performance is under the personal supervision of Dr. George Chandler who will himself conduct the orchestra.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, Jan. 13.—On Saturday evening next, January 15, the officers elect of the Cottekill Council, No. 168, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be installed in their lodge rooms by Deputy State Councillor R. Kelder and staff of Kingston. This ceremony will be public to the extent that each member of the local council may invite one friend, either a lady or gentleman. The ceremonies will commence at 8:30 p. m., and after the installation is completed, one of the banquets which the council is noted for, will be served, followed by several speeches by prominent speakers and a social hour enjoyed. All officers elect are earnestly requested to be present to be installed. All members are also earnestly requested to be present with a friend as a good time is in store as well as plenty of "eats" for all who may attend.

Jacob Osterhoudt is still confined to his bed, seriously ill.

KINGSTON, N. Y., JAN. 13, 1916.

All records for brutality in the maltreatment of American citizens on land or sea pale into insignificance beside the story of the slaughter of seventeen mining men by Villa handits near Chihuahua City. Since Carranza has been formally recognized by Washington as the ruler of Mexico, there was nothing for Secretary Lansing to do but to make a prompt demand upon the First Chief to punish the murderers, but nobody seems to believe that he is able to do so. If he falls after being given a reasonable chance, there will almost surely be armed intervention by the United States, acting either alone or in conjunction with the other American republics. Such is the sentiment of Congress, as shown in the debates on Wednesday. It is a most irritating circumstance that in pursuing such a course we shall in a sense become a cat's-paw for Villa, who instigated this outrage for the purpose of revenging himself upon Carranza by bringing about intervention. The probability is that Carranza will find it necessary, in order to keep what hold he has upon the Mexicans, to proclaim war upon the United States if they intervene. So, after this long period of disgraceful "watchful waiting," we find ourselves in a worse situation than at the beginning. There is little use at this time in rehearsing the blunders which Wilson has made from first to last in treating this affair. After sowing the wind for so long we are in for reaping the whirlwind.

Prominent lawyers in many States, including seven former Presidents of the American Bar Association, have signed a letter to President Wilson urging him to appoint William H. Taft to the place on the Supreme Court made vacant by the death of Justice Lamar. Their argument is that he is "better qualified than any other man successfully to discharge the high duties of a Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States." A recommendation like this ought to have great weight with a man who actually possesses two qualities which President Wilson professes. Of course, he is receiving other recommendations, and they ought to be published too. It has often been proposed that "pittiless publicity" be turned upon all recommendations of appointments, but no one has yet had the nerve to introduce such a policy. It might result in a series of political earthquakes. The trouble with most of the aspirants for appointments is that they have no claim except that based on the amount of "dirty work" they have done.

Military instruction for a few hours each week for public school boys is a not unreasonable suggestion in line with national defense, although a storm of criticism from the anti-militarists may prove an obstacle to the adoption of the plan. Setting-up exercises are most valuable to good physical health and an erect carriage. The latter alone would prove of unmeasured benefit to high school students of today, and it is best attained through drill. While it may not be found necessary to take up actual rifle practice, such literal training of the young ideal how to shoot would be of utmost usefulness if the call ever came. Deferred until early manhood, military training does not make so direct an appeal to young men whose time at that period of life is almost wholly taken up with new duties and privileges. Rear Admiral Higginson, a firm believer in military training in the schools, supports his position with sound arguments. Surely the development of the body thus secured would seem a benefit more than outweighing any false notions gained about militarism, of which our idealists have such an overwhelming dread.

Although the fruit auction sales of the State Department of Foods and Markets seem dead in New York City, the idea that nothing but nice things should be said about them is not general among trade publications, which again point out the fizzle of this sales system. To carry on a successful auction, even under the auspices of a paternal commonwealth which foots the bills, it is necessary to bring out buyers as well as sellers. Only the latter were in evidence at Market Commissioner Dillon's last effort at an auction.

Yet the State has made a large investment in expenses and salaries to carry on this enterprise, its return approximating 2 1/2 per cent, far below the commissions of private concerns. But fruit is comparatively cheap this year. Even auctions under State control cannot shift the grip of those two veteran market manipulators, Messrs. Supply and Demand. The quicker the State realizes this truth, the better for the taxpayers and the condoling producers from upstate whose expectations were so high at the advent of this State Auction Market scheme.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

Bix—"A fire broke out at the prison last night. 'Broke out, did it? Then you might call it a fire escape—what?" —Boston Transcript.

"Jags certainly has the luck of getting up against it." "Yes, we had our front door painted freshly the other day, and he got up against that, too." —Baltimore American.

"Seems to think well of himself, eh?" "Do you know what kind of a fellow he is?" "Tell me." "He takes stock of himself a dozen times a day for fear he'll overlook some of his good points." —Birmingham Age-Herald.

"I verily believe that inanimate things sometimes enter into the spirit of a festive occasion." "I know it. Last night when I was going to a blowout, my automobile chimed in with a couple of its own." —Louisville Courier-Journal.

"Would your wife vote for you as a candidate for office?" "I don't think there's any use of my bothering my head about that," replied Mr. Meekton. "I don't believe Henrietta would let me run in the first place." —Washington Star.

Crawford—"You seem to think your wife the most unreasonable woman in the world." Crabshaw—"You see, I mortgaged the house to buy her an auto, and now she wants me to raise money on the car to purchase Christmas presents." —Judge.

The Intelligent Juror.

"It is not uncommon with lawyers when addressing a jury to single out one member who appears to them to be one of the most intelligent, and, therefore, the one most likely to be influenced by their appeals," said a well known jurist recently. "But it does not always work out advantageously," he continued. "All the testimony in a case recently tried in Texas had been taken, the lawyers for both sides summed up, and the judge had charged the jury, when suddenly loomed up the aforesaid intelligent juror against whom both counsel had thundered their impassioned appeals. He was thirsty for information and straightway addressed the court:

"I have been bothered a lot by two words the lawyers use here and there. 'What are they?' demanded the court, expecting, undoubtedly, to be called upon to expound a fortiori or some other abstruse term. "Plaintiff" and "defendant," said the juror. "I don't know just what they mean." —Lippincott Magazine.

Just Like Him.

"Whit d'ye think of it?" "Mon, it's fine," exclaimed Tam in great admiration. "It's just like ye, tae. An' whit might the like o' they cost?" "I dinna ken," replied Sandy. "hinnna ped yet." "Mon," said Tam, more firmly than ever, "it's awful like ye." —Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

The Aimless Man.

"The man without an aim in life," said Charles M. Schwab in a Y. M. C. A. address in Loretto, "is in an absurd position, compared with the man with a well marked aim, as for example, the drunk in the railway station. A drunk got out of a taxicab at a railway station, lurched over to the ticket window, touched his opera hat and said: "Give me a—hic—return-please?" "Where do you want to go to?" said the ticket agent impatiently. "The drunk stroked his chin and considered a minute. Then he said, with a polite smile: "What—hic—trains have you?" —Cincinnati Enquirer.

Very Enjoyable Concert.

In the earlier days of music, the combination of the human voice and the harp was considered the very acme of music charm and grace. But such a musical grouping is all but unknown today, partly due to the fact that artistic harpists are very rare, and partly due to the fact that in our present complicated state of living we think much more elaborate accompaniments and instrumental solos only worth while. Those who attended the second Dodge Subscription Concert at the high school building last evening, and heard Mrs. David, harpist, and John Barnes Wells, tenor, realized the charm of such an evening of music. Two other elements entered into the pleasure the audience derived from the concert; the charming personality and fascinating appearance of the harpist and the fact that nearly every number sung by Mr. Wells was in our mother tongue and with every word clearly enunciated. Mr. Dodge was the most excellent piano accompanist of Mr. Wells, who at once created a proper musical atmosphere by the artistic rendition of his first number, "Love Me or Not," by Secchi. Young's "Phyllis Hath Such Graces," always pleases when sung as Mr. Barnes sang it and the graceful little Handel number, "Come and Trip It," proved to be a little gem. No number in this opening group was more admirably given than the encore, "Beloved, It Is Morn'g."

Even with the modern improvements to the instrument, the harp seems to have unusual limitations when played by any but such an artist as Mrs. David. Under her skillful fingers and pedalling, "sweetness" is by no means the only qualifying word to be used in description of the effects produced. There was crispness to the point of brilliancy and pathos and volume with the tenderness for which the harp is noted. In the first group of selections, "Legend," by Zabel; "Meditation" from "Thaïs" by Massenet; and "Polonaise," by Margaret Hoberg. The audience was enthusiastic in its applause and by request, Mrs. David played that fascinating little composition, "Sixteenth Century Music Box." One of the most ambitious harp selections was the "Song of the Sea," by Harriet Ware. It has all the variety of the ceaseless waves, with just a touch of the terrible relentlessness of the ocean. In the last group of harp numbers, both of the Hasselmanns' compositions were especially pleasing, the "Harp d'ecole," and "Les Follets," calling for expert technical skill. One of the most brilliant numbers was the "Pattuglia Spagnuola," and as an encore Mrs. David played "All Through the Night," which seemed particularly suited to the pathetic tenderness of the harp. Everyone enjoyed to the full, the songs with harp accompaniment. The old Pergolesi composition, "Nina," was one of Mr. Barnes' choice numbers. Sidney Homer's "Banjo Song," was sung straight into the hearts of the audience. "Shamrock," was an ideal selection, and the "Boat Song," by Harriet Ware, was full of grace. The audience were so thoroughly enraptured with Mr. Wells, his delightful voice, the naturalness of his singing, which is about as fine art as one needs to find, that an encore was insisted upon, and he sang a "Plantation Lullaby" that everyone liked. In the final group of songs, Mr. Barnes was heard in his own two clever little numbers, "The Owl," and "Why?" greatly to the delight of all. As an encore to the last number of the program, "If I Were King," splendidly sung by Mr. Wells, he gave a nonsense song, that was charming musically and full of humor without burlesque, leaving his audience in the happiest possible frame of mind, as they wended their way homeward. The last of the Dodge Concerts will be given at the high school on Wednesday evening, March 22, when the soloists will be Lucy Gates, soprano, and Alexander Bloch, tenor.

Denning Log Case Ended.

The jury in the case of Frank Furman against Elmer Ter Bush rendered a verdict of no cause for action at the opening of county court this morning. H. Westlake Coons appeared for the plaintiff, while John R. DeVany was counsel for the defendant. Both parties live in the town of Denning. Furman having sold logs to Ter Bush, who conducts a saw mill.

It was brought out in the trial that the total amount due the plaintiff was $1,110, which both persons agreed on at the time of calculating. Furman claimed that he did not have his glasses at the time and so could not see the figures. Apparently the defendant did most of the computations but the next day he discovered two glaring mistakes, one of $10 in subtracting and the other $100 in adding a simple sum. TerBush sent Furman a statement of the account the following day, together with notes which covered the agreed amounts less the $110. Furman accepted the notes but would not listen to an explanation of how the mistakes were made. On TerBush's failure to pay him all the agreed amount, Furman had the case tried before the justice court of Ellenville, where the justice rendered judgment in favor of the plaintiff. The case was appealed to the county court, where the whole court day of Wednesday was occupied by it.

That Deadly Room

Recently a furnisher and decorator was called upon to criticize a room that had been redecorated and refurnished. It was a sitting room in the home of a trim middle aged woman. Everything in the room was neatness personified. The furniture was good, the rugs well chosen, the draperies and wall paper correct. Yet there seemed to be something wrong about that room.

The housewife felt it, but it took several minutes puzzling before the expert realized that what gave to the place its suggestion of stiffness was that it totally lacked perquisites.

It had the deadliness of a room that is never actually lived in. It was entirely lacking in personal touch. There was nothing to bespeak the taste, habits or character of her who dwelt in it.

If it had only had a cushion among the others that looked as though it might have been worked by the fingers of a friend—if there had been a rack of magazines or a table with some favorite book open face down upon it—if there had been a musical instrument or a set of golf sticks in the corner or a bit of sewing or even a bird or a box of ferns—some spirit might have breathed into it.

But as it was, in spite of the fact that it was faultlessly as well as expensively furnished, it was as lifeless as a wax lay figure well coiffed and Paris gownned smiling a stuck-on smile from behind the plate glass of some store show window.

Among the extras that are most desirable adjuncts to a sense of comfort at the home are a variety of small tables. Hardly can a room be cheerfully settled without at least one small table in it. It may be a little reading table at the head of the bed or a teakwood stand near the window, a card table or one to write on.

Of all the small tables put on the market this year none can equal in general utility as well as seamlessness the combination table tea wagon.

The new type has a top tray, with a good-sized drawer beneath it. In the center is a shelf, so that papers and magazines ordinarily kept on top may be hurriedly cleared off, and lower down is still another eased in shelf.

Sooner or later some enterprising manufacturer will make such a table with a drop leaf at either side. With such an adjustment a table of this sort could be laden with hot dishes in the kitchen and wheeled into the living room. The leaves being set up would enlarge it sufficiently for two or four persons to dine at it comfortably.

The makeup table is the latest temptation to women who enjoy the use of fine toilet articles and who, realizing now the almost prohibitive price of imported creams, lotions and cosmetics, are careful to keep such treasures under lock and key.

The makeup table is about as high as an ordinary dressing table, but measures only 12 by 14 inches across. It looks like a box on legs, and that really is about what it is. The lid lifts up and is lined with a mirror. In the body of the box are little compartments for the various powders, perfumes, etc., and the lid fastens down with a fine spring lock.

Child Hygiene For January.

Anxious mothers often err in one of two ways in looking after the physical wants of young children. They either line the medicine chest with gargles, castor oil, cathartics and dope for colds or they neglect the child's needs entirely. Physicians are recommending mothers to get further away from using the old time honored medicine chest. They should take the suggestion offered by the Chinese physicians, who make it their business to keep their patients well.

If you are a rational mother you will give your child a wholesome and health diet. This means plenty of milk and fresh eggs and a good portion of fresh vegetables and fruit. Meat once a day for young children, but they need it that often to make blood and strength. One of the simplest ways of keeping children well is to give them plenty of fruit and water.

MRS. WILLIAM CRONAN.

JEWELS OF PRESIDENT GRANT'S GRANDDAUGHTER STRANGELY VANISH.

San Francisco, Jan. 13.—Jewels worth $26,000 are being sought here by Wells Fargo detectives following their disappearance from trunk shipped by Overbrook, Pa., to this city, by Lieut-Commander William F. Cronan. Most of the jewels belonged to Mrs. Cronan, granddaughter of General U. S. Grant.

The trunk was sealed at the time it was turned over to the Express Company, and the seals were still intact when it was received here. The loss of the jewels will not be an irretrievable one to the wife of the naval officer, except for their association, as she is wealthy in her own right. Her father, Jesse Grant is a large mine owner. She and Lieutenant Commander Cronan were married in 1913 in the city hall at San Francisco only a few municipal employees witnessing the ceremony.

Lieutenant Commander Cronan, who served with Schley and who once saved his gun turret crew from death by thrusting his hand into the breech-block of an eight-inch gun, was divorced by his first wife in 1910.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

By Telegraph to The Freeman.
New York, Jan. 13.—Irregular changes were shown in the early trading on the Stock Exchange today but many were in urgent demand and in three stocks new high prices were established in the first fifteen minutes. New York Central was the most active of the railroad issues, advancing 1/4 point to 110 1/2, while Industrial Alcohol was the most prominent of the specialties, declining 1 1/2 at the start to 133 and then advancing to a new high record of 135 1/2. Inspiration Copper reflected continued accumulation by strong interests, advancing 1/4 to 47 1/2, a new high record and Cuban American Sugar rose 2 points to a new high record of 175. Crucible Steel advanced 2 points to 58. Mexican Petroleum was in free supply, the first sale being made at 115 1/2, a loss of a point from which there was a rally to 116 1/2. The stock again yielded to 116 on the next few transactions. United States Steel common dropped 1/4 to 85 1/2, and trifling losses were sustained in Union Pacific, Anaconda Copper and Atchafalaya. Third Avenue Railroad was in scant supply and advanced 1/4 to 62 on moderate buying. American Smelting was off a point to 106 1/2.

During the late forenoon some issues made new high records and others sharp declines were noted in a few of the specialties. Industrial Alcohol made a further gain of 1/2 point, selling at a new high record of 136 1/2. Cuban American Sugar advanced to a new high record of 176, a gain of 3 points in all. New York Central continued active, selling at 111, a gain of one point. St. Paul and Erie issues each made fractional gains. Steel common sold down to 85 1/2, and Baldwin Locomotive recorded 1/4 to 106 1/2. Money loaning at 1 1/2 per cent.

War order issues were again forced to the front during the late afternoon and vigorous advances were noted in a number of those issues. Crucible Steel was the most active, selling at 61 1/2 against 56 at the close yesterday. New York Air Brake rose to 149, a gain in all of four points. An advance of 2 points was made in Baldwin Locomotive, which sold at 108 1/2. American Coal Products sold at an advance of 6 points to 162. The railroad issues appeared to be neglected, New York Central declining a point to 110.

The closing was weak and unsettled. After vigorous gains in the early part of the last hour a sudden selling movement developed forcing prices down sharply all around. Mexican Petroleum dropped to 110 1/2, a few minutes later American Smelting yielded to 103 1/2. Crucible Steel broke to 59. Standard issues sold off fractionally. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds strong.

Quotations furnished by John D. Kline, Warren Building, Fair street, Kingston, N. Y. 123. Correspondent of C. H. Van Buren & Company, members of Consolidated Stock Exchange of New York.

"It is very wrong to tell a falsehood," said his mother to little Jimmie, whom she had caught in one.

"Then we're both off sinners, ain't we, maw?" queried Jimmie.
"Both! What do you mean?"
"Why, you told Mrs. Smith yesterday that you hoped she'd call again, and after she wuz gone you said you wished she'd never come again."

HIGHLAND.

Highland, Jan. 13.—One of the most attractive and interesting business and social affairs held recently was the Auxiliary Club when it met last Friday in M. E. Church parlor, with Mrs. Byron Clearwater, Mrs. Abram Bloomer, Mrs. Walter Constable as hostesses. On account of illness of Mrs. Constable, Mrs. Daniel Kurtz was the hostess in her place. There were fifty present and several invited guests beside, and at the proper hour, the president, Mrs. R. H. Parker, let the gavel fall and business was taken up and the manner in which the women considered the problems presented them gave evidence they were imbued with a spirit of action, for there were many absorbing topics and the discussions were most interesting. Reports of officers and standing committees were full of interest to all, and testified to the value and increase of work. Great interest is being taken in the coming fair. They decided to have entertainments often and we were informed by a member that a fine entertainment will be put on the last of January or the first week in February. Then later on, the members of the dramatic club will be seen in a good strong drama. There is nothing that brings heart within touching distance of heart like the tongue, hence speaking seems nature's ordained means of informing and moving people. While this is true generally, in no country is it more specifically true than in ours, and we are positive these people will try to please all, and when the time comes we hope to see them well patronized. The various committees have specialized their work, and all take a personal interest in the present and future welfare of their church. At this meeting 6 o'clock the motion to adjourn was carried. Then a reception was held, when the hostesses served a bountiful luncheon of ham and pineapple sandwiches, jelly, pickles, baked beans, cake and coffee, which brought a pleasant relaxation after absorbing business discussions. It was late when all expressed pleasure to the hostesses for the very delightful afternoon of business and social intercourse. Simplicity has always been the keynote of the social side of auxiliary meetings, for only in this atmosphere are the finer social and spiritual forces generated. And these meetings are appreciated and looked forward to with great pleasure and each one seems to tie with the other as they throw open their homes and the church to receive the club members. The next meeting will be held February 4, and at that time they expect some new members.

The merry jingle of bells lets the people know you are coming, and from the looks now, with another snow storm, all will realize they are not in Florida.

COUNTY FARM BUREAU.

Letters Received by The Freeman From Appreciative Readers.

Southern Ulster Fruit Farm, Spring Glen, Jan. 10, 1916. To The Readers Of The Freeman and all interested in Agriculture: As agriculture or tilling of the soil is the keynote to all business enterprise, the demonstrations given by the manager of our Farm Bureau in this section of the county, the past year was very instructive and much benefit derived to the few that availed themselves of the opportunity. Why not put our shoulder to the wheel and become a member of the Farm Bureau of Ulster county. Keep ourselves abreast with our neighboring counties in agriculture and the eradication of insect pests which our Manager W. H. Hook is able and willing to help us.

A. B. TICE.

Editor Freeman: All praise to The Freeman and Manager W. H. Hook of the Farm Bureau for the Farm Bureau story. 'Twas complete and exhaustive. 'Twas great. Hats off to Manager Hook and The Freeman.

Fire at Hay Press Factory.

Kingston's fire bug after being in retirement for a short time got busy again Wednesday evening and attempted to set fire to the Hendricks hay press factory on Cornell street, which is vacant at the present time. Fortunately the incipient fire was discovered in time by a young man living on O'Neil street who turned in an alarm from Box 54, shortly after 10 o'clock to which the firemen quickly responded. The quick work of the firemen prevented the building from being entirely destroyed and the damage was slight. Two lines of hose were strung but were not used as it was found that the flames could be extinguished with the chemicals which were done. An investigation by Chief Chipp of the fire department showed that the fire was plainly the work of the fire bug as only waste had been used and the fire had started from the outside of the building. The hay press factory was last used by the National Biscuit Company as a warehouse while their present building was being erected.

INTERIOR OF VOORMEZELLE CHURCH.

WHAT ONE BIG GERMAN SHELL DID.

The destruction that can be wrought by one of the big 42 centimetre shells fired from the German guns is well illustrated in this picture, which shows the interior of the church at Voormezelle, France, after one of the big shells had exploded inside. The shell came in above the altar, leaving the big whole above the crucifix, but miraculously sparing it.

LIBRARY HAS LESS THAN 80 MEMBERS

Interesting Facts Brought Out at the Annual Meeting of the Kingston City Library Association.

With over fifty thousand books in circulation in the city of Kingston, less than eighty people pay membership dues annually to the Kingston City Library, and the annual report of the treasurer submitted to the library trustees at their annual meeting Wednesday night shows a deficit of $182.68 for the year.

Membership dues are one dollar for each individual, but some individuals make payments of a larger sum for their dues, so that the total membership with these facts in mind can be imagined when attention is called to the fact that receipts from membership dues for the entire year amounted to eighty-one dollars.

Cities and villages having a smaller population than Kingston in many cases have a library membership of more than a thousand, with corresponding receipts, and a careful perusal of the reports of the treasurer and librarian will suggest to many Kingstonians in what direction their duty toward the library lies.

Officers Reselected.
Mrs. Lillian P. Landon, Charles H. DeLaVergne and Wesley D. Hale were re-elected trustees to succeed themselves, and at a subsequent meeting of the entire board of trustees, the officers of the library association were re-elected as follows: Myron J. Michael, president; Mrs. Lillian P. Landon, vice president; Frank Covokoudal, treasurer; Charles H. DeLaVergne, secretary.

Treasurer's Report.

The treasurer's report of receipts and disbursements was as follows:

KINGSTON CITY LIBRARY.

Treasurer's report for the year ending January 12, 1916.

Receipts—
From warrants accepted by city treasurer $5,000.00
From membership fees $1.00
From fines $10.00

From gifts and other sources $12.45
Total cash received $5,013.45
Disbursements—
For employees and labor $2,119.21
For books, periodicals and binding $10.17
For repairs, supplies and novelties $25.00
For fuel and light $12.04
For telephone service $12.04
For insurance $20.00
For postage, printing and stationery $101.25
Total cash disbursed $4,096.47
Deficit for year $816.98

Increasing Public Use of the Library.

The increasing public use of the library is shown by the report of Miss Marie Herbert, librarian, who states that a careful study of the statistics for 1915 shows an increasing use of the library not only for recreation but also for serious reading.

In 1914 more books were loaned for home reading than in any previous year, but in 1915 the previous record was exceeded by 6,309 volumes, or 11 per cent.

Over 50,000 Books Loaned.

The total circulation for 1915 was 55,434. In the last five years the circulation has increased 27 per cent.

Sixty-four per cent of the books loaned were fiction, which is a good per cent in a small library and in a city where there are not special inducements for study. Five years ago the percentage was 77.

The increase has been larger in the children's room than among adults. In this department the circulation in 1914 was 12,756; in 1915 it was 15,441, an increase of 17 per cent. With a special librarian trained for children's work and more juvenile books, which are urgently needed, the work with children could be greatly increased. Having only two people on the library staff and a rush of work, the library is not able to give the children the attention they ought to have. The supply of juvenile books is inadequate. The percentage of fiction in this department is 51.

The uptown branch was successful, over 4,000 books having been given out there. Since its removal from Kingston Academy to School No. 7, the circulation has increased.

Use of Reference Books Increased.

During the year the library was visited by 30,814 people, an increase of 3,008 over the previous year. (These figures do not mean 30,814 separate individuals, but instead that that was the number of visits by people wishing to secure or consult books.) The use of reference books increased 30 per cent.

Books added during the year numbered 564, of which 364 were by purchase and 462 were gifts. Four hundred and thirty-two were discarded because worn out, leaving a net gain of 423 books. This does not include unbound magazines and pamphlets.

In addition to traveling libraries, many books are being borrowed for individuals from the State Library. Between 200 and 300 pictures were received during the year, which have been exhibited. Some of which have been used by high school teachers in their work.

The large increase in the work makes it almost impossible for two people to do it, and another assistant is urgently needed.

Classification of Books Loaned.

The circulation of books by classes was as follows:
Unbound magazines, 6,055; general works, 529; philosophy, 205; religion, 288; sociology, 3,120; philology, 370; science, 740; useful arts, 783; fine arts, 978; literature, 2,674; history, 1,550; travel, 1,085; biography, 929; fiction, 35,097. Total, 55,434.

Van Slyke & Horton, cigar manufacturers of this city.

Wright is All Right.

The portrait of Chester Young which appears in The Freeman today is from a photograph made by V. T. Wright, the widely known Ellenville photographer, who knows how to do things in a hurry. Mr. Young sat for the picture, the plate was developed, dried, retouched, printed and ready for delivery all within one hour. Mr. Wright was once a press photographer where "get there" is the motto, and when he knew The Freeman was in a hurry he "got there."

"Coffee Don't Hurt Me"

Can he get away with it?

The drug, caffeine, in coffee, about 2½ grains to the average cup, hurts many coffee drinkers, at some time of life, and often hurts them hard.

Caffeine is a powerful irritant that unsteadies the nerves, races the heart, disorganizes the digestive organs and plays havoc with the health of a large proportion of coffee users.

Of course, there are some who go on drinking coffee for years, without apparent harm, at least they don't suspect it, until the cumulative drug, caffeine, has got in its work. Isn't it the best plan to play safe with health—quit coffee and use

INSTANT POSTUM

This pure food-drink made of wheat and a small portion of molasses tastes much like mild, high-grade Java coffee; yet contains no drug or other harmful elements.

Postum comes in two forms: the original Postum Cereal, must be well-boiled. 15c and 25c packages; Instant Postum, the soluble form, can be made in the cup, at table, by adding hot water. 30c and 50c tins. Both kinds are equally delicious and the cost per cup is about the same.

The better health that follows quitting coffee has shown thousands

COLONIAL GLEE CLUB SHOW A NOVELTY

The entertainment which the Colonial Glee Club is putting on at the Kingston Opera House on Monday and Tuesday of next week is of such a nature that it might very properly be called a spectacular vaudeville show with high class musical specialties.

The humor of the old-time minstrel "first part" is interspersed with musical numbers some of which sung by the endmen are the very newest and most laughable comic songs, and others of a high character sung by some of the best singers in the city.

Elmer E. Eastmead, whose voice is well known to Kingston people, will delight the audience by his rendering of "Mighty Lak a Rose" with a humming accompaniment by the chorus. John E. McCarty has not been heard publicly in Kingston before, but his intimate friends can anticipate the pleasure which is in store for the audience. His voice is a pure tenor beautifully placed and very unusual in quality. His solo will be one of the choice bits on the program. Philip B. Fitzpatrick is another fine singer whose voice will be a revelation to Kingston people.

One of the most amusing numbers will be a comic sextette conducted by one of the endmen in a manner that would provoke laughter at a constitutional convention.

The finale which terminates the first part of the program is from one of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas, and will be instantly recognized by lovers of their music as the one which Sullivan considered the most brilliant chorus he ever wrote. The women's voices in the finale will make possible an effect not usually attained in a minstrel show.

Between the acts there will be an exhibition of clog-dancing by John Fox and James Lawrence. This is an act which they have put on in vaudeville in New York with great success.

The number "Hello Frisco" will be an attractive one and will be presented with the same scenic accessories as were used in the "Follies of 1915." Miss Hilda Rifenbary will be on the wire at Frisco and John E. McCarty will hold the telephone at the New York end. The young ladies of the chorus will represent the central stations through which the wire runs.

"Bargain Day," the little one-act farce, which will be acted by Miss Tessa Gellart and Martin Netter, is one of the funniest things ever written, and is now running on one of the vaudeville circuits with tremendous success.

Probably the most amusing number of the entertainment will be King Kole's Kingdom which is last on the program. This skit has never been produced on any stage in Europe, Asia, Africa or America, and probably never will be again. It's the only opportunity the public will ever have to see it in its present form. New York managers need not offer to buy or produce it as the owners could not be induced to part with the rights though offers from moving picture houses might be considered. A film production of King Kole, his adviser and his jester when the enemies' aeroplane drops bombs on the front lawn of the palace, would be a movie that would draw crowds. P. B. Fitzpatrick as King Kole can give De Wolf Hopper food for thought, while Ezra Abrahams as the jester would make Charlie Chaplin jealous. Burt Davis, the royal adviser, is a scream, and Dan Cronan (General Debility) as he bellows his orders at his mighty army and inspects his troops is worth the price of admission.

Tickets for the minstrels are for sale all over town at the usual places and may be exchanged for reserved seats at the theater box office beginning Friday morning. There is no additional charge for the reserved seats.

The entire performance is under the personal supervision of Dr. George Chandler who will himself conduct the orchestra.

COTTEKILL.

Cottekill, Jan. 13.—On Saturday evening next, January 15, the officers elect of the Cottekill Council, No. 168, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be installed in their lodge rooms by Deputy State Councilor R. Kelder and staff of Kingston. This ceremony will be public to the extent that each member of the local council may invite one friend, either a lady or gentleman. The ceremonies will commence at 8:30 p. m., and after the installation is completed, one of the banquets, which the council is noted for, will be served, followed by several speeches by prominent speakers and a social hour enjoyed. All officers elect are earnestly requested to be present to be installed. All members are also earnestly requested to be present with a friend as a good time is in store as well as plenty of "cats" for all who may attend.

Jacob Osterhout is still confined to his bed, seriously ill. The O. & W. pay car passed through this village on Tuesday. This warm sultry weather is very bad for the grip. Quite a change from the zero weather of the past week.

A number from here attended the funeral of Mrs. Catherine Jane Keator at Binnewater last Wednesday.

The Keator Brothers are busily engaged in hauling their annual supply of wood, assisted by Arthur Weeks.

Our station agent, L. R. Conner, who has been away a few days attending a meeting of the O. R. T. of which he is general chairman, at Sidney, N. Y., has returned home and again resumed his duties. He was relieved during his absence by Operator Stapleton.

Mrs. Andrew Pine, who has been spending some time with her sister at Accord, has returned home.

Miss Mary DeWitt of Kingston, spent a few days with her father here the past week.

Miss Laura Snyder, who has been

'Life's Shop Window'

That is the name of a most heart-rending play, but, nevertheless, one that teaches its lesson in a strong, forcible manner. But there is another "Life's Shop Window" which is not heart-rending, but teaches its lesson in a manner no less strong and forcible.

This is the Want Columns of the newspaper. There you will see all the varied changes and ups and downs of fortune, but in each instance real benefit is derived from this great medium of commercial aid.

Don't fail to look into "Life's Shop Window" each day, for you will see something there nearly always that will help you along on your journey to success.

SOCIETY NOTES.

Tuesday evening Miss Mathilda J. Rice gave a surprise linen shower at her home on Summer street in honor of Miss Elizabeth Rieser, whose engagement to Herman L. Tour has been recently announced. The young ladies present were the Misses Elizabeth Rieser, Lena Kohler, Lillian Wolf, Ada Cudney, Allie Hobertis, Anna Stumpf, Cora Holstein, Carrie McCullough, Margaret Rieser and Mathilda Rice. A dainty luncheon was served at 10 o'clock and the favors were delicate miniature bride cakes. Miss Rieser received with open arms a large white bag filled with beautiful linen pieces from the young ladies present and with many thanks said she would make very good use of them all in the near future.

Boeckel-Brewer.

A newspaper romance dating back to the office of the Poughkeepsie News-Press culminated Monday evening in the marriage of Miss Florence Multhead Brewer, of Whitestone, L. I., to Richard Boeckel, of Poughkeepsie, the ceremony being solemnized in Washington, D. C., where the bride has been connected with a suffrage publication. Mr. Boeckel was for a time associated with the staff of the Kingston Leader and had many friends here who join in extending congratulations.

Very Enjoyable Concert.

In the earlier days of music, the combination of the human voice and the harp was considered the very acme of music charm and grace. But such a musical grouping is all but unknown today, partly due to the fact that artistic harpists are very rare, and partly due to the fact that in our present complicated state of living we think much more elaborate accompaniments and instrumental solos only worth while. Those who attended the second Dodge Subscription Concert at the high school building last evening, and heard Mrs. David, harpist, and John Barnes Wells, tenor, realized the charm of such an evening of music. Two other elements entered into the pleasure the audience derived from the concert: the charming personality and fascinating appearance of the harpist and the fact that nearly every number sung by Mr. Wells was in our mother tongue and with every word clearly enunciated. Mr. Dodge was the most excellent piano accompanist of Mr. Wells, who at once created a proper musical atmosphere by the artistic rendition of his first number, "Love Me or Not," by Secchi. Young's "Phyllis Hath Such Graces," always pleases when sung as Mr. Barnes sang it and the graceful little Handel number, "Come and Trip It," proved to be a little gem. No number in this opening group was more appreciated than the second, "Beloved, It is Morn'g," by Secchi. Even with the modern improvements to the instrument, the harp seems to have unusual limitations when played by any but such an artist as Mrs. David. Under her skillful fingers and pedalling, "sweetness" is by no means the only qualifying word to be used in description of the effects produced. There was crispness to the point of brilliancy and pathos and volume with the tenderness for which the harp is noted, in the first group of selections, "Legend," by Zabel; "Meditation" from "Thais" by Massenet; and "Potionale," by Margaret Flower. The audience was enthusiastic in its applause and by request, Mrs. David played that fascinating little composition, "Sixteenth Century Music Box." One of the most ambitious harp selections was the "Song of the Sea," by Harriet Ware. It has all the variety of the ceaseless waves, with just a touch of the terrible relentlessness of the ocean. In the last group of harp numbers, both of the Hasselmanns' compositions were especially pleasing, the "Harp d'ecole," and "Les Follets," calling for expert technical skill. One of the most brilliant numbers was the "Pavane Spagnuola," and as an encore Mrs. David played "All Through the Night," which seemed particularly suited to the pathetic tenderness of the harp. Everyone enjoyed to the full, the songs with harp accompaniment. The old Pergolesi composition, "Nina," was one of Mr. Barnes' choice numbers. Sidney Homer's "Banjo Song," was sung straight into the hearts of the audience. "Shamrock" was an ideal selection, and the "Boat Song," by Harriet Ware, was full of grace. The audience were so thoroughly enraptured with Mr. Wells, his delightful voice, the naturalness of his singing, which is about as fine art as one needs to find, that an encore was insisted upon, and he sang a "Plantation Lullaby" that everyone liked. In the final group of songs, Mr. Barnes was heard in his own two clever little numbers, "The Owl" and "Why?" greatly to the delight of all. As an encore to the last number on the program, "If I Were King," splendidly sung by Mr. Wells, he gave a nonsense song, that was charming musically and full of humor without buffoonery, leaving his audience in the happiest possible frame of mind, as they wended their way homeward. The last of the Dodge Concerts will be given at the high school on Wednesday evening, March 22, when the soloists will be Lucy Gates, soprano, and Alexander Bloch, tenor.

For the past six months he had not been in robust health and last fall he took an extended trip through Canada, from which he returned greatly improved. Dr. Bryant was born in Andes, Delaware county, and was a graduate of the Long Island Medical College, Brooklyn. He came to Kingston about seventeen years ago and was associated with his brother-in-law, the late Dr. R. Thompson, succeeding to the latter's practice when he died. He was a doctor of unquestioned ability and had many friends and enjoyed a wide acquaintance through the county. At various times he was employed as health officer by nearby towns and he had a high regard for the ethics of his profession. Socially he was a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 550, B. P. O. Elks; Margaretville Lodge of Masons, and the Ulster County Medical Society. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Betsy Ann Bryant, widow of Asbel Bryant, who was a prominent resident of Delaware county, and one sister, Mrs. R. R. Thompson, with whom he lived. The funeral will take place from his late residence, No. 81 Green street, on Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. The service will be conducted by the Rev. Charles F. Kennedy, rector of St. John's Church.

Holy Cross Defeats Ashokan. Absent the service of the Ashokan and Butler, who are on the sick list, the Holy Cross team traveled to Ashokan and defeated the team there by a score of 28-24. The game was fast throughout. J. Sills and Rourke played a good game for the winners, getting twenty-two points between them. Soper and Kierman also did good work. Newman, who was so closely guarded, was unable to score a point, but he played a wonderful floor game. The dance, which was held at the parish house by the team was attended by a record breaking crowd. Next Wednesday night there will be a basketball game at this hall between the Holy Cross team and Saugerties Independents.

ABT. WRITING. EFFICIENCY in advertising is simple terms, is getting your message across. Advertising does well, even money. It pays for itself and increases your profits. The sort of ad I write cut the cost of sales. If your selling costs are too high, write me. George M. Zalmer, care of Kingston Freeman.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Jan. 13.—Irregular changes were shown in the early trading on the Stock Exchange today but many were in urgent demand and in three stocks new high prices were established in the first fifteen minutes.

New York Central was the most active of the railroad issues, advancing 1/4 point to 110 1/4, while Industrial Alcohol was the most prominent of the specialties, declining 1/4 at the start to 133 and then advancing to a new high record of 135 1/4. Inspiration Copper reflected continued accumulation by strong interests, advancing 1/4 to 47 1/4, a new high record and Cuban American Sugar rose 2 points to a new high record of 175. Crucible Steel advanced 2 points to 58. Mexican Petroleum was in free supply, the first sale being made at 115 1/4, a loss of a point from which there was a rally to 116 1/4. The stock again yielded to 116 on the next few transactions. United States Steel common dropped 1/4 to 85 1/4, and trifling losses were sustained in Union Pacific, Anaconda Copper and Atchafalaya. Third Avenue Railroad was in scant supply and advanced 1/4 to 62 on moderate buying. American Smelting was off a point to 106 1/4.

During the late forenoon some issues made new high records and others made substantial gains, while sharp declines were noted in a few of the specialties. Industrial Alcohol made a further gain of 1/4 point, selling at a new high record of 136 1/4. Cuban American Sugar advanced to a new high record of 176, a gain of 3 points in all. New York Central continued active, selling at 111, a gain of one point. St. Paul and Erie issues each made fractional gains. Steel common sold down to 85 1/4, a loss of 1/4, and Baldwin Locomotive receded 1/4 to 106 1/4. Money loaning at 1 1/4 per cent.

War order issues were again forced to the front during the late afternoon and vigorous advances were noted in a number of those issues. Crucible Steel was the most active, selling at 61 1/4 against 56 at the close yesterday. New York Air Brake rose to 149, a gain in all of four points. An advance of 2 points was made in Baldwin Locomotive which sold at 108 1/4. American Coal Products sold at an advance of 6 points to 139. The railroad issues appeared to be neglected, New York Central declining a point to 110.

The closing was weak and unsettled. After vigorous gains in the early part of the last hour a sudden selling movement developed forcing prices down sharply all around. Mexican Petroleum dropped to 110 1/4 in a few minutes. American Smelting yielded to 103 1/4. Crucible Steel broke to 59. Standard issues sold off fractionally. Government bonds unchanged; other bonds strong.
